George Urges 24-Hour Day in War Factories; British Official Arrives for Talks on Finance

U. S. Must Send Aid To Britain Quickly, Senator Declares

England Is 'Good Risk' for Proper Kind of Loan, Says Jesse
Jones, RFC Head.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Speculation on the possibility of loans to Great Britain reached new heights in Washington tonight, following two striking developments:

(1) Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce and federal loan administrator, tersely remarked that England is "a good risk" for loans. He added that ordinarily he favored lending money "to good risks when they need it for a proper purpose."

(2) Secretary Morgenthau, announced only a few minutes later, that Sir Frederick Phillips, the undersecretary of the British treasury, was coming to the United States to "place the latest available information (on British finances) before the Treasury."

(Phillips arrived in New York late today on Pan-American's Dixie Clipper.)
George Urges Speed.
Another major development bearing on aid to Britain occurred when Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, new chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, told reporters that United States war material factories should be placed on a 24-hour day and the whole arms production program stepped up to a "wartime" pace because material aid to Britain must be given quickly if it is to be most effective. He was speaking about arms production solely, not about loans.

Must Sense Need.
Senator George, in talking to reporters, said:

"The supreme need at this time is to step up the whole defense program from a peacetime effort to a wartime effort. It is difficult for us to realize that we are not yet doing that. We do not seem to sense the pressing need for even greater and faster production than we are getting—and that is not a criticism of the defense program as far as it has gone."
The institution of a 24-hour day for the defense industries should be accompanied, he said, by action to "get rid of anything and everything that interferes with stepping up the program." He was re-

Water Rates Will Be Slashed By 30 Per Cent

Reduction Effective
White Announce.

Mayor-elect LeCraw and Councilman John A. White, slated as chairman of the 1941 council finance committee, yesterday announced a 30 per cent cut in water rates will become effective March 1, 1941, and, according to records of the water department, will save $294,985.50 in 1941 and $341,997.10 annually thereafter.

The reduction will be made effective for 74,834 users living inside the city limits and 10,081 residing outside.

The saving will equal nearly a mill and one-half cent in the tax rate. The present digest raises about $240,000 for each mill levied, Joe C. Little, senior tax assessor, said yesterday.

White Statement.
While issued with LeCraw's approval, a statement of incoming administration plans, and urged economy in administration of city affairs after calling 1940 "the greatest spending year in the history of Atlanta," with pay roll accounts increased $132,174.80 made up of 88 new employees receiving $108,492.72 and salary raises amounting to $23,682.08.

(Water rate saving to be $294,985 in 10 months. Story on Page 17.)

WPA Workers Warned To Accept Private Jobs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Works Projects Administration advised its 1,817,000 enrollees today to be constantly on the lookout for jobs in expanding private and public industries.

Howard O. Hunter, acting WPA commissioner, said those who did not accept such offers of employment automatically would be dropped.

Greeks Capture Porto Edda; Advance on Albanian Capital

ATHENS, (Thursday) Dec. 5.—(UP)—Greek troops early today were entering the abandoned and shell-blasted Fascist strongholds of Porto Edda and Premeti after driving Italian forces from a 1,000-mile-square triangle of southernmost Albania in day-long savage fighting, official statements said.

On the rugged far northern front Greece's warriors, ousting enemy troops from a defense line in the Frassari mountains, north of captured Pogradec, were reported driving close to the Italian main base at Elbasan, only 24 miles from the Albanian capital of Tirana.

A government spokesman, describing the victory on the southern Epirus front, said that, under murderous artillery and aerial siege, the Italians had begun complete withdrawals from the seaport and landing base of Porto Edda, from Argyrocastron and from Premeti.

Greek advance forces began entering Porto Edda's outskirts last night, the spokesman said, past Italian dead and wounded and hastily abandoned war materials. Italian counterattacks with tanks were broken, the high command said, and more than 500 prisoners were taken in the Premeti region, as well as great quantities of guns and war materials.

The rout of the Fascists from the southern area of Albania marked the first major Greek victory on Albanian soil, it was stated.

WHERE SIX MET DEATH—Here is a view of the shattered wreckage of a United Air Lines transport plane which crashed in a vacant lot a block and a half from the municipal airport at Chicago last night. One wing was partly sheared off, and the nose was pushed back into the fuselage as the plane struck the ground. At least six of the sixteen persons aboard the plane were killed. Keller Melton, son of Dr. Wightman F. Melton, of Atlanta, was among those injured. Snow and ice may be seen on plane. The accident occurred in murky weather.

Nine Others Hurt When Ship Plunges Into a Vacant Lot

Accident Occurs in Murky Weather
Near Municipal Airport; Flames Extinguished by Firemen.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Six persons were killed tonight when a United Air Lines mainliner plunged into a vacant lot near the municipal airport and burst into flames.

Keller Melton, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., at present regional safety engineer in Chicago for the Federal Works Administration, and nine other persons were injured, three of them critically, when the big ship crashed in murky weather.

Melton formerly was safety director of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration in Georgia with headquarters at Atlanta. He has been stationed in Chicago in fulfilling the duties of his present position. He is a brother of Quimby Melton, widely known newspaper publisher of Griffin, Georgia. His father is Dr. Wightman F. Melton, of Atlanta, formerly a member of the Emory University faculty.

One-Time Builder.
Melton formerly was prominent in Atlanta building circles. At one time he was connected with the Minter-Melton Homes Co., which built homes throughout the Atlanta section.

(From Atlanta last night, Quimby Melton talked to hospital officials in Chicago by long distance telephone and was told his brother was suffering from a hip injury but that his condition was considered "good.")

The air lines company reported that the dead were: Captain Philip Scott, Chicago, the pilot, a veteran of eight years of service.

First Officer George S. Young, Chicago, the copilot.

Lee F. Haneline, Chicago, division superintendent of reservations for UAL.

Wilbert J. Austin, Cleveland, president of the Austin Company, engineers and builders.

S. W. Moore, United States Ordnance Engineers, Cleveland.

Miss Jane Selby, Chicago.

Names of Injured.

The list of injured, in addition to Melton, was given as follows: Paul Ryan, Cleveland, president National Refining Company, condition fair.

T. F. Paulson, Montgomery Ward & Company, Wilmette, Ill., condition poor.

Richard R. Petit, Bostonia, Cal., government employee, condition good.

Leo Wolins, Chicago, condition bad.

R. G. Woodbury, Denham Tire & Rubber Company, New York City, condition good.

Stewardess Florence Little, Chicago, condition fair.

Owen M. Frederick, 4888 Porter road, Olmstead, Ohio, civilian engineer's office U. S. Engineers, condition poor.

George Haig, Sherwin-Williams Company, Cleveland, condition fair.

C. W. Manville, Cleveland, general sales manager of the National Refining Company.

The mainliner, with 13 passengers and a crew of three aboard, dropped about a block and a half from the airport about 7 p. m. (Atlanta time) while snow was falling.

Witnesses reported that the plane, in-bound from Cleveland and the east, ticked a three-story apartment building with its wing, brushed against power lines supported by a steel pole, smashed against a small garage, and plumped to the earth a few feet from a row of houses.

The nose was pushed back into the fuselage, they added, and flames spread from the gasoline tanks.

A UAL spokesman stated that the ship had circled the airport for 28 minutes waiting for the traffic control department to give it clearance to the airport.

Substitute Plane.

The plane was a substitute ship to which the passengers and crew transferred at Cleveland.

The airport dispatch tower radioed to Captain Philip Scott to take off at Cleveland at 3:08 p. m. (Atlanta time). The plane which had flown the trip from

Engel Spikes Rumors He'll Leave League

'Bush League Barnum'
To Stay as Chattanooga
Club President.

By JACK TROY,
Sports Editor.

Joe Engel, the "Bush League Barnum," yesterday put to rest rumors that he might leave the Southern League.

After telling it to Judge Landis, high commissioner of baseball, for a couple of hours—the nature of the interview was not disclosed—Engel, in answer to a query, said he would remain at Chattanooga as president.

Engel is to have a meeting of Chattanooga stockholders December 21, and at that time it is expected the Lookout club will be turned back to Washington, the former owner.

Engel, former Washington pitcher and chief scout, will remain at Chattanooga to run the club for the Senators, he said yesterday.

The convention buzzed with big-league deals yesterday. Brooklyn got Mickey Owen in a deal involving Gus Mancuso and cash. The Cubs got Billy Meyer for Jimmy Gleason and Bobby Matlick in a deal with the Cincy Reds.

Bert Niehoff, deposed pilot of Jersey City, is still shopping around for a managerial berth. Niehoff would like to return to the Southern, where he has won pennants in Atlanta, Chattanooga and Mobile.

The only available job is at Little Rock.

No manager has been named at New Orleans, but it is strongly rumored that Ray Blades, ex-St. Louis Cardinal manager, will pilot the Pelicans. It is understood that the only thing holding up the deal is a little matter of terms.

'Independent State of Dade' Rejoins Georgia and Union

County Across the Mountain Now Connected by E. D. Rivers Highway; Governors Rivers and Cooper Speak at Dedication Ceremonies.

By LUKE GREENE,
Staff Writer.

TRENTON, Ga., Dec. 4.—Mountain-studded Dade county came back into the state of Georgia today and, by the same token, into the Union from which it seceded in 1860.

The occasion was dedication of a strip of new road, the E. D. Rivers highway, which links Lafayette and Trenton, and for the first time gives Dade county contact with the rest of the state.

Almost from the day it was carved out of Walker county in 1837, Dade has been known as the "lost county of Georgia." You could go into Dade from Tennessee or Alabama, but not from Georgia. The razor-like back of Lookout mountain separated it from its sister counties. It was a territory unto itself.

But all of that is changed now. The hand of Dade reached out today and grasped the palm of Walker. The two were reunited. And by this reunion Dade came back into Georgia.

It was a grand reunion. Governor Rivers was here to see a plaque unveiled bearing his name. A plaque that lets the world know that the highway is named for him.

Governor Prentice Cooper, of Tennessee, was here to express the gratitude of his state over the construction of a network of roads over Lookout mountain, sometimes referred to as the scenic wonderland of the south.

Two sister states who sat on a platform in the biting cold before a crowd of mountain folk and listened to Governor Rivers envision what the development might mean in years to come.

They could sit on the platform and gaze through an opening where engineers blasted through 68 feet of solid rock to construct the road. Beyond that they could look out over a beautiful valley and view the city of Trenton. This spot henceforth will be known as the "door to Dade."

This dedication was not for one road alone. There is another extending from Chattanooga to Alabama through the same section. There is still another extending from the Tennessee line to Cloudland, and these, too, were included in the dedication.

Governor Rivers told some of the reasons for building roads. They were many.

For one thing he thinks it will be a scenic spot which will attract tourists from all over the nation. There will be parks, one to be known as Cloudland Canyons, at the site of Old Sittin's Gulch. There will be another park on the Cloudland route.

The Governor said that during the next five years $500,000 in federal money and $100,000 in state money will be spent in developing these parks.

He added he expected the grading on the Cloudland route to be finished by January 1.

In addition to this, the Governor

Change Sought In Way Pauper Tax Is Fixed

New Bill Would Give Power to County Commission.

A bill proposing that Fulton county commissioners and not the grand jury set the county's annual tax levy for pauper purposes, now limited by law to three mills, has been drawn for submission to the general assembly, it was disclosed yesterday at a meeting of the county commission.

The tentative draft, submitted by Hughes Spalding, head of the county's legal staff, set the new maximum that might be levied for this purpose at 2 1-2 mills, but discussion among the commissioners indicated an effort would be made to increase the maximum to 2 3-4 mills.

The present state law—adopted as a temporary measure in 1938 and applicable for two years only—provides that two succeeding grand juries must approve the relief rate before it could be levied.

Spalding pointed out that this law automatically expires this year and the levy will return to 1 1-4 mills unless the law is amended.

The present Fulton county levy authorized by the grand jury for all relief purposes is 2 3-4 mills.

James Respass, county auditor, told the commissioners he estimates that each one-mill levy in 1941 would bring $300,000. He also said the total anticipated for 1940 under the present levy is

Melton Was On Way Back From Capital

Had Been Doing Special Work for Defense Commission.

Keller Melton, brother of Quimby Melton, editor of the Griffin News and son of Dr. W. F. Melton, was returning to Chicago from Washington, where he had been doing some special work for the defense commission in connection with airport construction. Graduate of Tech, Emory and Bowdoin College, in Maine, he had recently been safety director for the WPA in 11 states in the mid-west.

World War veteran, he was one of the youngest commissioned officers in the Army, becoming a second lieutenant at the age of 16. His wife is the former Miss Helen Brown, of Atlanta. They have a son, Keller Jr., 16.

Radio Station WGAC

Is Opened in Augusta
AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 4.—(P)—Radio Station WGAC brought to Augusta today a new instrument of communication and entertainment.

It is 250 watts in power, and is owned and operated by three Augusta men, F. F. Kennedy, president of the station; Millwee Owens, vice president, and Glenn R. Boswell, secretary-treasurer. Boswell is publisher, Owens editor of the Herald. Kennedy is an attorney.

The station has the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

pointed out that the roads will enlarge the trade territory of Chattanooga, enabling the farmers to get their fruits and vegetables and other products to market.

The roads, he continued, will give impetus to a program of conservation, since the region is filled with various forms of wildlife. The highways will permit the full exploitation of the natural resources of the mountain area and promote industrial development, he said.

"My enemies said that this project cost $1,000,000," he asserted. "Well, I'll tell you they are wrong. It cost $2,000,000 and I think it's worth it. In five years it will bring in more dividends than any similar $2,000,000 spent anywhere in the state."

"Of course, they may tell you that these roads aren't paid for," he added. "But all they have to do is wait around until the money comes in. We have already built the roads."

The Governor said he expected an airport to be built on the mountain for commercial and defense purposes.

Pointing to the fact that he had been severely criticized for granting so many pardons, he said: "I can tell you we are going to pardon some more before we go out. In fact, we may let out some of the boys in the convict camps who have been working on this road."

The Governor introduced J. M. C. (Red) Townsend, of Dade county, who had a large part in promoting the project; Herman Watson, member of the State Highway Board; W. R. Neel, state highway engineer; Sam Boykin, secretary of the board; George Blount, maintenance engineer; Comptroller General Downing Musgrove, and others in his official party.

Governor Cooper described the highway as a "splendid achievement" and expressed the appreciation of the people of Tennessee for its construction. He praised

Governor Rivers for his "vision and foresight."

Colonel H. J. Weeks, of Chattanooga, presided. Wallace Grant, of Rome, welcomed the visitors and Mrs. Mark Morrison, president of the Lookout Mountain Garden Club, unveiled the plaque.

Before the dedication ceremonies members of Governor Rivers' party were guests of Dade county and Chattanooga officials at a luncheon at the Fairland Club, high on the rocks of Lookout mountain.

Among others present at the luncheon were H. C. Fabian, of Atlanta; Stanley Lochman, of Chattanooga; V. T. Webb, state warden; Ernest Dennis, Chattanooga postmaster; Frank Gleason, of Rossville; Burl Hall, of Chickamauga; Dr. Herbert B. Kennedy, of Omaha, Neb.; Ralph Cubine, Walker county commissioner; Tom Bryan and Judge Walter Langford, of Walker county; Gordon Lee Sullivan, of Summerville; Jimmy Wilson, of Atlanta; Mayor Ed Bass, of Chattanooga; Judge Will Cummings, of Hamilton county; Willard Forehand and Sam Davis, two students at the University of Georgia, and C. D. Little, of Chattanooga.

Dade Secedes.

There was a story told about Dade county. It is more than a story, it is history.

In 1860 Dade county had a representative by the name of R. H. Tatum in the legislature. He was a great debater and, during the trying days before the War Between the States he told the legislature his county was going to secede, regardless of what the rest of Georgia did.

He went back home and called a convention of his people. They passed a resolution that Dade had seceded from the Union. And thus, it became the first territory to secede, notwithstanding the long-accepted claim of South Carolina to this honor.

There have never been any written documents announcing the county's return to the Union.

But to those who attended the dedication Dade county no longer was a "free and independent state" but a definite part of the state of Georgia.

ROLL, MOTORCADE, ROLL!—All set for traffic yesterday was the new E. D. Rivers Highway between Trenton and Lafayette, Ga. Previous to the road's completion, travel between Dade and Walker counties was through Chattanooga. Dedication ceremonies were held and a dinner honoring Governor Rivers, of Georgia, was held last night by the Chattanooga Automobile Club.

6 Persons Die, 10 Injured as Plane Crashes

New York faxed out over the field.

Scott "reved" up his motors. One did not satisfy him. He taxied back to the hangar. Passengers, crew, mail, baggage and express were transferred to the ill-fated ship.

That plane departed at 3:59 on its last flight.

Structure Jarred.

George Anthony, who lives in the apartment building, said the structure was jarred. He rushed out, he added and saw the airliner burning. The flames, fed by gasoline, were extinguished by firemen.

The crash occurred about 7 p. m. (Atlanta time).

Mrs. Forest Reeder, who lived at the scene, said she heard "a commotion" in the air just before the plane knocked off part of a neighbor's roof and landed at the edge of her backyard.

"I rushed out in the yard and heard people moaning," she said. "A man was trying to get out of the plane."

Other neighbors said two men staggered out of the plane and were the first rushed to the hospital.

The pilot's body, badly burned, was the last to be extricated from the ship. It had been pinned under a motor.

Witnesses said the stewardess was alive but unconscious when she was taken to a house to await an ambulance.

Harold Crary, United Air Lines vice president, said that "a light snow was falling when the plane arrived and that it circled the airport for 28 minutes waiting for the traffic control department to give clearance into the airport."

"Four other planes landed during the same period," Crary added. "There was a ceiling of 1,200 feet and the visibility was one mile."

The plane reported nothing unusual by radio between Cleveland and Chicago, Crary said.

"This was the second accident of United Air Lines in 40,000 trips between Cleveland and Chicago," Crary said.

J. H. Herlihy, vice president in charge of operations of the line, went to the scene and began an immediate investigation in an attempt to determine the cause of the crash.

(A consensus of four pilots at the airport, who declined to permit use of their names, believed that icing might have contributed to the crash, the United Press reported. The radio range was giving the temperature at 32 and the dew point at 31—a condition which causes ice—when the ship came down.)

The crash was the second airlines accident within a month. On November 4 all 10 occupants of a UAL plane were killed when the ship hit a Utah mountain-side.

The only other fatal crash of an airliner within the last 20 months was that of a Pennsylvania Central Airline plane which carried 25 persons to death in a crash near Lovettsville, Va., August 31.

Until the Pennsylvania Central crash, most disastrous in point of lives lost in the history of American commercial aviation, there had not been a fatal accident on commercial airlines in 17 months and four days.

Full Probe Ordered.

William A. Patterson, president of United, said he had ordered a full investigation and would remain at the airport "until morning, if necessary."

"I can't understand this plane hitting a power line," he added.

Richard Rocas, an attendant at the Northwest Airlines hangar at the airport, said the plane's approach to the field was "perfectly normal" and that it looked as though the pilot would land easily.

"I suddenly I heard the motors roar," he said. "The plane's nose dipped down and it turned slightly to the left. Then it hit the ground at about Sixty-fourth street and Cicero avenue and broke into flames at once."

Edward Fisher, who resides near the scene, said he saw a red flare drop from the plane. Sensing trouble, he rushed toward the airport but that the plane "swooped down and crashed so suddenly I couldn't tell how it happened."

Crowd Gathers Quickly.

Fisher said about 25 persons reached the scene ahead of him and everyone hesitated to enter the burning plane because wires were down around it.

"Another fellow and I opened the door of the plane and went in," he said. "There were flames in the front part of the ship, the cabin. We pulled out the stewardess and Haig (a passenger). Haig said he believed his arm was broken. He was able to walk to an ambulance."

"I pulled a big fellow out of the cabin, but he seemed to be burned to death."

Miss Little, 23, is a registered nurse and had been employed by United for about a year. Her father, Robert B. Little, is a salesman for a (Daval) rubber company at Providence, R. I., but maintains his office here.

Former Hockey Star.

Scott, 34 years old, once was a University of Minnesota hockey star, captaining the Gopher team of 1923. He graduated from the university and took naval air training at Pensacola, Fla., graduating from the government school in 1932. Shortly afterward he began flying for United. His widow, a two-year-old son, of Chicago, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George L. Scott, of Minneapolis, survive.

Manville's condition was reported critical several hours after the accident.

Woodbury, a New York financier, told police that the plane had circled the airport for several minutes when he noticed that one wing "tipped" badly. A woman screamed, he was quoted as saying, and the next thing he knew he was lying on the ground, underneath the plane.

Haig's injuries were limited to a fractured arm and singed hair.

RAF Using U. S. Planes Extensively

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(P)—American-built warplanes are being used extensively by the RAF in the middle east and the Mediterranean, a ministry of information communique disclosed tonight.

One of their outstanding performances was declared to have been the making of pictures of Taranto harbor, giving the story of the fleet air arm's recent blow at the Italian fleet.

"The RAF in the middle east is enthusiastic about the performance of the American aircraft," the communique said. "These have fought their way successfully through many operations."

Austin, Crash Victim, Noted Plant Builder

Executive's Firm Hired To Expand Defense Producing Industries

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—(P)—Wilbert J. Austin, 64, killed tonight in the crash of a United Air Lines mailliner at Chicago, was president of Austin Company, of Cleveland—builder of some of the nation's largest industrial plants.

Austin was en route to Los Angeles for business conferences, members of his family said. His firm recently had received contracts for expansion of the Bendix Corporation plant at South Bend, Ind., and from defense producing industries on the west coast.

An aviation enthusiast, he crossed the Pacific ocean aboard the China Clipper in 1937.

A native of Cleveland, he studied architecture in England and in 1924 became president of Austin Company, founded by his father. He also was president of the Austin Company of California, Austin Company of Texas, Austin Securities Company, Austin Company, Ltd., Surety Investing Company, Owners Investment Company, and Austin Realty Company.

Fulton Board Declines To Act On Air Field

Project for National Guard Squadron Imperiled, Major Warns

The Fulton county commission yesterday "took under consideration" a request for $15,000 to be used in development of a hangar and training field for Georgia's new National Guard Observation Squadron despite a statement by Major George Finch, commander of the unit, that the federal government has already allocated $300,000 for the development and "any delay will seriously jeopardize the project."

The request precipitated a spirited verbal battle, during which Commissioner E. L. Almand declared "I'm not for going outside of Fulton county to spend money" after Finch had said he proposed to locate the hangar "at Camp Gordon airport," which is in DeKalb county.

Almand contended the county has an option on 1,000 acres of land near Fairburn which would be suitable, but Major Finch replied it will take too long to develop that tract and added "the project must be completed by June, 1941."

Action Is Asked. Major Finch said the city would be asked for a $15,000 contribution toward the project.

Almand told Finch the county did not have the money and offered to take the matter "under consideration." But Finch insisted on action and Commissioner I. Gloer Hailey moved that it be delayed until next year with the recommendation that it receive favorable action by the new board personnel if the project would be located in Fulton county. Commissioner J. A. Ragsdale seconded Hailey's motion but it never came to a vote, as Dr. C. R. Adams reminded the board they could not obligate next year's board.

Almshouse Protest. Other action by the commission:

1. Received and filed without action a petition protesting against any plan to remove the county almshouse from its present location in North Fulton park.

2. Set a 25-mile-an-hour speed limit on the following roads: Howell Mill road, from city limits to Collier road; Bellmeade road, from Howell Mill road to North Side drive; DeForest avenue, from Howell Mill road to Boulder road and Holmes street and Antone road, from Howell Mill road to Spring Grove.

3. Deferred action on a petition from the county ordinary, sheriff, clerk, tax receiver and tax collector to set up an information desk in the lobby of the courthouse.

4. Authorized the county legal department to make a survey of all county salaries to determine if the county is liable for any more back salaries to those persons whose salaries were cut during the depression years. Already the county has paid out more than $70,000 in back salaries under a supreme court ruling.

The almshouse petition was signed by Mrs. E. Rivers for the women of the North Avenue Presbyterian church; Mrs. J. Hope Hollingsworth and Mrs. J. M. Lennard for the women of the Central Presbyterian church; Mrs. A. K. Merriam for the women of the Westminster Presbyterian church; Mrs. T. B. Gay Sr. for the women of the First Presbyterian church, and Wm. V. Gardner, William Robinson and J. M. Harvey for the ministers and student ministers who have been preaching at the almshouse.

Mediation Committee Named by Americas

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Pan-American Union today named a five-nation committee to mediate disputes between the 21 republics under circumstances suggesting new efforts to compose long-standing territorial differences between Ecuador and Peru. The committee—to comprise representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Mexico, Cuba and the United States—was designated by the Pan-American Union governing board composed of diplomatic representatives of the 20 Latin American republics and Secretary of State Hull under resolution 14 of the Havana conference of foreign ministers.

34 Officials Co-operatives Are Elected Are Urged to By City Voters State Farmers

Only Small Number of Atlantans Turn Out To Ballot.

Thirty-four municipal officials were elected to office yesterday as only a small number of the 37,557 qualified voters took the trouble to visit the polls.

The thirty-four were nominees of the September Democratic primaries and none of the posts were contested.

Following are the new officials: Mayor, Roy LeCraw; council members: First ward, Cecil W. Hester and James E. Jackson Jr.; second ward, Joe Allen and George B. Lyle; third ward, J. Alton Couch and William T. Knight; fourth ward, Roy Bell and John T. Marler; fifth ward, Paul E. Butler and John A. White; sixth ward, Howard Haire and Frank Wilson. Aldermen: First ward, G. Dan Bridges; second ward, Ed A. Gilliam; third ward, L. O. Moseley; fourth ward, Dr. Lester R. Brewer; fifth ward, Frank H. Reynolds; sixth ward, Raleigh Drennon. Board of education: First ward, Ed S. Cook; second ward, Dr. Charles C. Rife; third ward, J. H. Landers; fourth ward, D. M. Therrell; fifth ward, D. F. McClatchey; sixth ward, J. Austin Dilbeck. Jack C. Savage, city attorney; B. Graham West, city comptroller; Dewey L. Johnson, superintendent of electrical affairs; C. J. Bowen, building inspector; Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction; Henry B. Kennedy, treasurer; Charles L. Mathews, tax collector; A. W. Callaway, recorder, first division; and Luke Arnold, recorder, second division.

Runaway German Ship Safe in Hamburg, Report

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A message indicating that the 2,827-ton German freighter Helgoland which sailed from Puerto Colombia, October 29 without bothering about the formality of clearance papers had arrived safely in Hamburg, Germany, was received here today. The message was from a German radio operator, formerly employed by Scadia, German airline in South America, who left here aboard the Helgoland. He merely reported to his wife here his arrival in Hamburg. (New York shipping circles received reports November 15 that the Helgoland was sunk by British warships in the Caribbean.)

Need of Recognizing Economic Benefits Emphasized Here.

Agriculture today needs leadership with sound vision, plenty of courage and the ability to recognize the tremendous economic potentialities of farmers organized into co-operatives, S. D. Sanders, of Washington, yesterday told Georgia stockholders of the Columbia Bank for Co-operatives, a unit of the Farm Credit Administration.

No one farmer can do much toward changing the economic condition of the individual farmer, but the farmer voting as a member of a co-operative can accomplish much, Mr. Sanders, who is commissioner of the Co-operative Bank, declared. Nowhere in the country, he added, is there greater need for farm co-operatives than in the south.

More than 100 farmers attended the meeting at the Henry Grady hotel yesterday at which detailed reports of the operation of the bank over the past year were given. Those reporting were Marvin A. Brooker, vice president and secretary; J. I. Sutphen, treasurer; and W. A. Daley, assistant treasurer. L. G. Foster presided.

Zionists To Meet Here on Monday

Reports on the southeast regional Zionist convention, held last week in Birmingham, will be presented at a meeting of the Atlanta Zionist district next Monday night at the Mayfair Club. Making the reports will be David Gershon, Joseph M. Brown, Josh Bressler, Sol Morgan, Sol Benamy and Charles Bergman. Dr. Frank Weitz will read a paper on Dr. Chaim Weitzmann, world president of the Zionist organization, and Mrs. Abe Fitterman will talk on Henrietta Szold, honorary president of Hadassah. Joe Glazer will lead community singing. The public is invited.

LeCraw Seeks Grand Jurors' Aid on Traffic

Mayor-Elect Outlines Objectives of His Administration.

Aid of the Fulton county grand jury in solving Atlanta's ever-growing traffic problem was sought yesterday by Mayor-elect LeCraw as he outlined major objectives of his administration, when he takes office January 6.

While the mayor-elect and members of the grand jury refused to comment on discussions, it was learned that LeCraw outlined his proposed 30 per cent reduction in water rates, the elimination of "hiding policemen," and to put every eligible Atlantian on the tax books.

Emphasis was said to have been laid on the traffic situation, with LeCraw stressing his belief that an engineering division of the traffic department is necessary to any permanent solution of present congestion.

LeCraw has insisted that steps should be taken to speed up the movement of traffic through elimination of ill-placed control devices. He also has asserted he believes a reduction of the 25-mile-an-hour present speed limit is necessary in the congested area.

A special subcommittee of the grand jury last week conferred with Mayor Hartsfield on traffic control methods, but the grand jury conference was believed to have been the result of similar conversations with LeCraw.

It was indicated the grand jury may refer to the conference in its presentations and that definite recommendations may be made.

Hornsby at Session. Philip Alston Sr., president of the Atlanta Bar Association, and Police Chief M. A. Hornsby also appeared at the special session.

Alston was reported to have discussed the feasibility of restricting the pardoning power of Georgia governors. Recommendations to this end have been made by the last three grand juries.

Hornsby was asked about certain investigations the grand jury is making of moral conditions in the city, and his appearance was not in connection with previously rumored changes in police department administration, it was said.

Missing Worker Is Feared Dead

Fears for a 54-year-old farmer who disappeared last Thursday just before the extremely cold weather were voiced yesterday by his employer, Leonard Wilkins, of Route 1, Stonewall, Fulton county. He believed it possible the missing man, Eddie McWilliams, had died of exposure.

McWilliams was described as having thick, sandy hair, bluish-gray eyes and a reddish complexion and weighing about 135 pounds and standing five feet eight inches. He had a noticeable upper front gold tooth and was wearing a gray felt hat, new rawhide work shoes, new rubbers, new blue overalls, a blue shirt, yellow lumberjacket and an army overcoat.

32 Georgians Enter Army At McPherson

Clyde Odell Brown, First Inductee, Becomes Number 34,002,301.

The wheels of Georgia's draft machinery began turning yesterday morning, slowly at first, but with increasing speed by late afternoon, so that 32 volunteer draftees had passed through the induction center at Fort McPherson and were on their way to a year in the Army.

An equal number of men reported to similar stations at Fort Screven and Fort Oglethorpe, where they underwent a strict and final physical examination, a "swearing-in" ceremony and the beginning of vocational classification tests which determine what they will do in the service during the next 12 months.

This procedure will continue today and tomorrow and take place again on December 9 for white draftees. On December 11 and 12, the state's Negro quota will head for the three Army forts. By then Georgia's first selective service quota of 412 men will be filled.

First Inductee.
The initial inductee at Fort McPherson was the highly publicized Clyde Odell Brown, of Heard county, who spent Tuesday in an Atlanta that was his for the asking. By 9 o'clock he had passed the physical, was sworn in and became Tag Number 34,002,301.

Lieutenant Willis H. Pearson, commander of the induction station, administers the oath of allegiance to the draftees who are sent by their local board to Fort McPherson. He also begins their Army career by assigning them a serial number, taking their vital statistics information and starting a service record book for each man. Then he notifies the nearest friend or relative that the inductee has been accepted for service.

From the induction station the new soldier goes to the reception center, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Frank Brokaw. There he is vaccinated, given a complete field uniform and equipment and classified into that branch of the service most acceptable to his education and personality.

2,000-Men Capacity.
The reception center at Fort McPherson has a capacity of 2,000 men and, later, when the draft wheels turn with rapid speed, draftees may spend as long as three days there going through the classification procedure.

Registrants who arrive at the fort and fail to pass the rigid Army physical examination are immediately returned to the local board from which they originated, and marked "rejected for service."

It was pointed out that industry is, under the law, required to cooperate with the Army in restoring to civilian status those men who resigned private positions to join the Army, and then were rejected on physical grounds.

This problem, authorities say, will not become pressing until the quotas begin taking men from the other lists. Then resignations from jobs, in order to answer the draft, might become nullified by failure to pass examinations. The present quota is being filled by volunteers, who are largely unemployed.

U. S. Rests Its Case
In Mobile Police Trial
MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 4.—(P)—The government rested its case in the trial of 38 Mobile policemen late today after dismissing charges against two of the indicted officers.

District Attorney Francis H. Inge moved for the dismissal of charges against former Traffic Officer Leslie B. Ellis and former Detective Charles Angelo Burton, declaring neither had been identified by any witnesses as having participated in the conspiracy with the government charges existed with bootleggers in violation of internal revenue laws.

AMONG THE FIRST—Honored yesterday morning were these voluntary inductees from DeKalb county draft board No. 1, who were among the first to be sent to Fort McPherson under the selective service law. Left to right are Board Chairman L. J. Cassels, Tom G. Grant and M. B. Guering. Back row, left to right, E. H. Howell, Marvin LaCount and T. C. Nelson.

TESTED FOR FITNESS—Captain R. L. Gilliam, of the Fort McPherson medical corps, gives a last physical examination to two voluntary inductees from Rome, Ga., who arrived at the fort yesterday to begin training under the draft law. They are Walter Harbuck and Ralph B. Gilbert.

Baptists To Give Radio Programs

Dr. George W. Truett, Dr. M. E. Dodd, Dr. John R. Sampey, Dr. W. W. Hamilton and other southern Baptist leaders are to be heard over a south-wide radio hook-up every Sunday afternoon, beginning in January, according to Dr. S. F. Lowe, chairman of the radio commission of the Southern Baptist Convention, who said "The Living Christ in the Life of Today" will be the general theme of this first Baptist radio program. A period of 30 minutes, including the musical program, has been arranged by the commission on strategic stations.

Other speakers will be Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, Atlanta; Dr. Theodore Adams, Richmond; Dr. John H. Buchanan, Birmingham; Dr. John L. Hill, Nashville; Dr. T. L. Holcomb, Nashville; Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, St. Louis; Dr. A. J. Moncrief Jr., Tampa; Dr. C. C. Morris, Oklahoma; and Dr. J. Clyde Turner, North Carolina.

Members of the Baptist radio commission are: Dr. S. F. Lowe, Atlanta; A. J. Moncrief Jr., Florida; Norfleet Gardner and J. B. Wetherston, North Carolina; R. H. Coleman, Texas; M. E. Coleman, Atlanta; C. C. Morris, Oklahoma; M. E. Dodd, Louisiana; T. V. McCull, Florida; J. H. Williams, Texas; H. C. Bass, Alabama; Edward Preston, Georgia; Herrick Hale, Tennessee; John L. Hill, Tennessee; and J. A. Musgrave, Illinois.

Atlanta Medical Group Will Meet

Nominations for president-elect, vice president, two members for board of trustees, one member on the judicial council and four delegates to the Medical Association of Georgia will be offered at a meeting of the Atlanta Academy of Medicine and Dentistry at the nurses' home of the Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital on West Peachtree at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Voting on those nominated will take place December 19.

Yesterday every member of the Fulton County Medical Society and the Fifth District Dental Society was urged to be present.

A scientific meeting will follow at 8 o'clock, with a discussion of laryngeal tumors with voice recordings before and after operations. The paper of the night will be on "The Use of Physical and Laboratory Methods in the Differential Diagnosis of Jaundiced States."

NEW DIAL SYSTEM.

ACWORTH, Ga., Dec. 4.—Telephone officials announced today that work will begin soon on installation of a dial system for the city's 170 subscribers. F. B. Dodd, manager of the Marietta exchange, which serves this locality, said the "cut-in" of the new system is expected by June of next year.

Defense Plant Strike Recommendations Made

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Steps to prevent jurisdictional disputes between rival labor unions in national defense industries were recommended today in a report to the National Association of Manufacturers by its employment relations committee.

The report also urged that when disputes between employers and employees arise in such industries mediation be sought before either a strike or lockout occurs.

"MACHINE CLERKS"—Mechanizing even its record keeping, the army now makes a few machines do the work formerly performed by a regiment or so of clerks. Here civil service employees translate company rosters into code, which in turn will be punched out on status cards.

EASY JOB—Records of 200,000 soldiers are kept in this office at Fourth Corps Area headquarters. That means 200,000 status cards on file. Sorting the cards alphabetically or numerically ordinarily would be a long, hard job. But now all the army does is slam them in this machine, punch a button, and the job is over in a few minutes. Frank W. Reichle is the operator.

Talmadge Buys Bull in Chicago

If there is any bull thrown at the next session of the legislature Governor Talmadge will throw his own.

Georgia's Governor-elect yesterday at the cattle show in Chicago bought a young polled shorthorn bull for $200. He must have done some sharp trading, for 33 were sold at an average price of $261.52.

Mammy Unable To Attend 2d Premiere Here

Corset Scene From 'G.W.T.W.' Won't Be Given on Stage.

"Scarlett" is coming to her birthday party without her Negro mammy, but Director Alfred Hitchcock will attend.

Announcement was made yesterday that Hattie McDaniel, mammy of "Gone With the Wind," would be unable to attend the anniversary premiere of "Gone With the Wind" here next Thursday night because she is working in a picture with Bette Davis.

That means the scene where mammy laces up Scarlett's corset won't be given on the stage.

Others To Appear.

E. B. Coleman, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer representative, said that Vivien Leigh, Laurence Olivier, Hitchcock and Atlanta's own "Miss Anniversary," picked as the girl making the best screen tests of all Atlanta girls, will appear on the stage during the anniversary premiere performance.

Hitchcock is a 260-pound Englishman who directed the successes, "Rebecca," "Foreign Correspondent"—both of which are ranking contenders for the best film award of the year, that distinction which "Gone With the Wind" won last year—and "The Thirteenth Step." He is an actor of note and has often appeared in his own films.

Prices Reduced.

Coleman announced the prices for the anniversary premiere had been reduced since the skit cannot be given on the stage. Proceeds go to the British War Relief Fund. Ticket prices will now be $3 for the loge and $1 elsewhere in the theater.

Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, chairman of the Atlanta British War Relief Committee, announced yesterday that tickets would be sold for 25 cents each to the shooting of the screen tests of the Atlanta girls, tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday. The relief fund will benefit, and tests will be made at the Georgian Terrace.

Chairman Named.

Mrs. Ben Gattins was named checking chairman and Mrs. Edwin Johnson co-chairman of the committee which will have charge of collecting the admission fees and checking hats and coats for those attending.

Committee members are Mrs. Louis Johnson, Mrs. Ed Smith Jr., Mrs. McKee Nunnally, and Miss Nancy Calhoun.

Vivien Leigh will leave Hollywood early in the morning of December 11 aboard a chartered plane to arrive in Atlanta that night.

Blacksmith Too Noisy, Is Indicted by County

"The smith, a mighty man is he," came from Longfellow's pen long years ago, but it isn't that way in Grayville, Pa., now.

Davis S. Sukay, the village "smithy," was indicted by the county grand jury for maintaining and causing a common and public nuisance.

RESINOL

SOLDIER'S STATUS—Presiding over one of the fancier machines, Ruth Rodgers presses a key or so and out tumbles an oblong piece of cardboard, a status card. To a layman's eyes, the holes on it mean nothing. To the adjutant general's department it is easily translatable code giving the name, number, and history of a soldier.

ALMOST HUMAN—This one does everything but whistle. Toss in the cards, plug in the right wires, and it will add, subtract, make out pay rolls, inventories, run off company rosters alphabetically or numerically, print locator cards, in short go through some 50 different operations. John McAllister wanted a company roll, and by pressing a button, gets it.

COMPLETES JOB—These three machines do everything the others don't. If a soldier goes AWOL, the machine on the right stamps it on his status card. Change its gears, and it performs another function. At the right is John M. Cooney, chief of tabulation for the corps area.

Machines Keep Personnel Data For Soldiers

Each Man's Record Is a Card Full of Holes.

Requisitioning themselves a set of mechanical brains to keep personnel records, staff officers attached to Fourth Corps Area headquarters here have been proudly displaying the formidable new machines to visitors at headquarters.

Occupying approximately half a wing on the fifth floor of the Federal building, the electrically operated machines keep track of the records of approximately 200,000 troops stationed in this section of the eight-state area.

Similar but smaller machine units also have been installed at Fort Bragg, N. C., and Camp Beauregard, La.

The machines record every change in status of the soldier from the time he enters the service until he is discharged, saving innumerable minutes and eliminating uncountable lost motion.

Tiny holes made in a record card for each man by a machine with a keyboard like a typewriter, show that he is in the army, his history, qualifications, status, and changes in his station as they occur.

All promotions, furloughs, hospitalization, and other changes of status are noted on the cards, making any soldier's record instantly available, and in the most compact form possible.

Wilhoit Calls For Reduction In Phone Rates

Cut in Intra-State Charges Would Save $228,000, He Says.

By The Associated Press. Southern Bell telephone tolls for in-state calls should be reduced to the level of the interstate rates and thus save Georgia customers a total of $228,000 a year, Public Service Commissioner Jud P. Wilhoit said yesterday.

Wilhoit earlier this week warned that the majority of the commission was about to grant increased railroad and truck rates and Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge sharply criticized the reported proposal.

"I think it's safe to say," said Wilhoit, "that the proposed increases will not be granted now by the commission."

Discussing telephone rates, he said "it is actually true that a call to Savannah, Ga., person-to-person day rate, costs 20 cents more than one to Nashville, Tenn., approximately the same airline distance."

These rate differences have been in effect since 1937 and the commissioner estimated that in the three-year-period the Bell System had collected $750,000 more than it would have if intra-state rates had coincided with interstate rates.

Wilhoit asserted that in 1937 he made an effort to reduce these intra-state tolls in Georgia to the level to which A. T. & T. and Southern Bell at that time lowered their inter-state tolls "but I was voted down by a majority of the commissioners."

He said the commission had authorized increases in the monthly service charges for 19 Southern Bell exchanges in Georgia and 10 independent exchanges since early in 1937. The increases ranged from $3 to $12 per year.

The Bell exchange increases were authorized in Buchanan, Barnesville, Louisville, Swainsboro, Wadley, Forsyth, Lyons, Madison, Eatonton, Douglasville, Jonesboro, Leary, Newton, Jackson, Camilla, Vidalia, Hogansville, Roswell and Austell.

Independent company hikes were authorized in Chickamauga, The Rock, Canton, Elizabethton, Appapulus, Quitman, Manchester, Perry and Milledgeville.

Every increase in independent telephone charges mentioned by Wilhoit was made by the commission on the direct motion of the customers who wished to abandon "the old coffee-grinder type of instrument," J. Prince Webster, general counsel for the Georgia Telephone Association, pointed out.

"The mayors, councils and citizens of the towns affected went themselves to the Public Service Commission and asked for the increase," he said.

E. B. Emrey, Georgia manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, commenting on Wilhoit's statement, called attention to the fact that in August interstate rates were reduced throughout its territory, effecting a saving to its customers of $500,000 a year, and that Georgia's portion of this reduction amounted to $80,000.

Emrey said that Wilhoit had neglected to mention that this reduction is responsible for the present difference in the interstate and intrastate toll rates and that, on account of its existing condition, it is unable at times to make further reduction in order to eliminate this difference.

Britain To Get Reminder on Old War Debt

'Regrets' of Past Bar Private Loans in U. S. Now.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A reminder will go to Great Britain in a day or two that an item of about a billion and a half dollars of unpaid World War debt complicates the current problem of financial assistance from the United States.

With no hope of collecting anything, the State Department is preparing the semi-annual notices to Britain and other war debtors of the amounts due this government on December 15.

The "regrets" that have come back from Britain in the past several years stand as a barrier now to any private loans in the United States.

PORTO EDDA'S HARBOR—Italian troops were reported last night to be retreating from Porto Edda, apparently giving up any idea of trying to fight off the Greeks, who were entering the Albanian city. The picture shows the harbor with Italian soldiers aboard the vessel in the foreground. The high hills overlooking the harbor gave Greek artillerymen a fine view for their deadly barrage.

Greeks Pray To Saint, Then Shell Enemy

Porto Edda Falls on Feast Day of Gunner's Patron.

By PAUL PALEOLOGOS.
WITH THE GREEK ARMY, OUTSIDE PORTO EDDA, Albania, Dec. 4.—(UP)—The fiercest shelling of the Greek-Italian war, on the feast day of the artillerymen's patron saint, today drove Fascist forces in retreat from their Porto Edda-Argyrocastron stronghold.

A chain of Italian forts on the outskirts of Porto Edda received hundreds of direct shell hits and are burning furiously, throwing up a curtain of fire before the city.

Greeks impatient.

As I write this, on a mountain top looking down on the blasted seaport, impatient Greeks are awaiting orders to storm into the town. Greek officers, watching the hasty Italian evacuation, hold the men back, however, to avoid useless bloodshed.

Their escape northward along the main road to Delvine and Argyrocastron cut off by shellfire and Greek encirclement, the Italians were compelled to flee along a coast road which dwindles to a mere mule-track when it turns into the mountains toward Valona 60 miles away.

(In Athens a government spokesman said Greek advance forces were entering the outskirts of Porto Edda after abandonment of the seaport as well as Argyrocastron and Premeti by the Italians but Paleologos' account did not mention an entry into the port.)

From the mountain heights overlooking Porto Edda I watched the terrific bombardment as the Greek gunners hammered the city from shortly after dawn until late in the day.

Italian Losses Heavy.

The Italians' losses were heavy and the advancing Greeks reported finding large numbers of dead and quantities of abandoned war materials, including many batteries of mountain guns.

About 1,100 prisoners were taken in the fighting, I was told.

I had a ringside seat at the spectacular siege and battle for Albania's vital southernmost port.

Red-eyed Greek gunners, almost sleepless for days, were beside me at dawn waiting for the zero hour that would send their shells screaming in the horrible din upon the Italian positions protecting the seaport.

Many of the gunners knelt beside their guns praying to the patron saint of artillerymen, Santa Barbara.

Santa Barbara is the patron saint of gunpowder.

Address on Shell.

The Greek gunners, once the battle was underway, grinned and exchanged jokes as the mountains rocked with the concussions.

I saw one artilleryman loading into a gun breech a shell crudely chalked "A souvenir for Taranto."

Italian planes dived over our heads, trying to hunt out the hidden Greek batteries. They dropped about 150 bombs, many of them only a short distance from us, then made off with Greek fighting planes on their tails.

Lorry after lorry brought up and dumped cases of shells to feed the Greek guns. Many of these trucks moved up sheer hillsides under constant Italian fire to carry ammunition to the most advanced Greek batteries, which were pouring shells upon the Italian positions in the valley below.

Guns Moved in Dark.

Under cover of darkness the Greeks had silently pulled their guns to the dominating mountain heights in a wide arc around Porto Edda—cutting the road northward to Delvine and Argyrocastron—and they waited for the dawn zero hour before launching the attack.

Using hastily constructed rafts, Evzone soldiers had waded waist-deep in the slime of the Butrinto river marshes during the night, dragging their light artillery to positions close to the seaport.

The Italians, it was said, relied on the Greeks being unable to make their way through the morass of the Butrinto river bottoms and concentrated their main defense forces at a bridgehead, only three miles from Porto Edda.

But the small force guarding the north bank of the river was surprised by Greeks and, before the Italian command could rush up reinforcements, most of the Italians had been killed and the

Smooth Seas Greet F.D.R. on Cuban Cruise

Destination Still Secret; Two Destroyers Escort His Warship.

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT AT SEA, Dec. 4.—(AP by Radio) President Roosevelt cruised along the Cuban coast today on the first stage of a trip into the Caribbean sea, where he was expected to inspect some of the naval and air bases recently acquired by the United States from Great Britain.

The sea was smooth, the weather was sunny and the temperature was in the 80's. The only ships sighted were several American freighters, one Honduran and one British.

Two of the United States neutrality patrol seaplanes from the Guantanamo naval base dipped over the cruiser Tuscaloosa—on which the President was enjoying the sunshine and salt air after a good sleep.

The Tuscaloosa, escorted by the destroyers Mayrant and Trippe, averaged about 30 knots during the night.

The President's destination remained a secret. When he left Miami, Fla., yesterday he announced he would sail into the Caribbean and that there would not be much fishing.

Greeks held a strong foothold on the north bank.

Regiment Annihilated.

After three hours of the fiercest kind of fighting the Italians were driven back into Porto Edda and the Greek artillery stepped up its shelling of the seaport. Most of the three-hour battle was fought in the marshes.

Greek officers described to me the "annihilation" of an Italian artillery regiment in the Suhars ravine.

The Greeks, pushing through deep snow up the mountain-walled ravine, were met by heavy Italian shellfire. The leading Greek column was said to have retreated slowly, leaving many dead but giving the crack Evzone fighters time to reach the heights on both sides of the ravine.

The Italians, suddenly finding themselves without cover from a rain of hand grenades tossed down upon them by the Evzones and a hail of machinegun fire, broke in panic and ran.

After taking the Butrinto river bridgehead, the Greeks pressed on and captured a village dominating Porto Edda from the mountains. From these captured heights the Greeks began shelling the town.

Nazi Bombers Briton Urges Again Smash U. S. Warships Midlands Area For Convoys

London Attacked; Fierce Barrage Meets Night Raiders.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(Thursday) (AP)—The German air force smashed at the Midlands—both eastern and western sections—last night with explosive and fire bombs, and in at least two towns in that area there were casualties.

In a town in the western Midlands a number of houses and a church and police station were damaged, but the raid there was comparatively short.

Fires sprang up early in the raid, but none was serious and all were put out. An undetermined number of people were trapped in basement shelters in the destruction of homes.

Raiders were reported over the eastern Midlands for nearly four hours, attacking singly and at intervals. Antiaircraft guns were active all through the Midlands area. London, too, did not escape, although the all clear sounded at midnight.

Bombs struck an occupied school in one district of the city. A school for incurable children was destroyed.

Skies on the city's outskirts were luminous with steady antiaircraft fire, and the guns could be heard over a wide area.

Adverse weather was credited with blunting the effectiveness of afternoon raids. An East Anglian town was attacked twice by low flying Junkers, but damage was said to be negligible.

America to Benefit From British Victory, Says Leader.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The British house of commons heard an unofficial suggestion today that the government appeal to the United States for warships to guard Britain's much-attacked Atlantic convoys and for dollar credits to pay for American supplies.

Ian Campbell Hannah, Conservative member of parliament and an educator who taught church history between 1915 and 1925 at Oberlin College, Ohio, urged in the question period that the United States "help patrol trade routes of the Atlantic with her own Navy." Moreover, he said, Britain should tell Washington candidly, "We want financial help."

"I do not see how this nation can bear the tremendous burdens of carrying on a great war which, after all, if we see it rightly, is just as much to the benefit of America as for our own empire," said Hannah.

Commons also heard from Sir John Anderson, the home secretary, that powers of labor compulsion may have to be invoked to rehabilitate bomb-blasted industrial centers.

Government spokesmen avoided a direct reply to Hannah.

Ford Favors World Chain Giving Britain Of Conspiracy U. S. Dollars Laid to Firms

Will End War in a Hurry, Auto Manufacturer Says.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Henry Ford said today that if Great Britain needs money he favored "giving them all they want."

"It will end the war in a hurry," he said in a brief interview.

"We did it before and we might as well do it again."

The automobile manufacturer was commenting on proposals for financial aid to Britain.

The American dollar, Ford went on, "is the best piece of paper on earth. To my knowledge it has bought a bushel of wheat for the last 66 years, and a bushel of wheat is the best dollar standard that I know of."

Ford, who 25 years ago started a peace expedition to Europe in the Oscar II., said that he was convinced neither side would win the present war. "After this war is over," he said, "I see the people turning to the land—the source of all things needed for the peace and prosperity of any nation."

Defense Called Vital

As Victory in 1918

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 4.—(UP)—Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, speaking before the American Legion conference here today, said that national defense now "is as vital an issue in 1940 as the winning of the war was in 1918."

Patterson compared the hardships of conscription in 1917 with the problems confronting the nation today.

U. S. Charges Effort To Control Nitrates, Vital in Defense.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—An international chain of conspiracies to control and monopolize the price and production of nitrates essential to the manufacture of munitions and other industries vital to national defense was charged today against 11 corporations and 32 individuals.

The indictments were set forth in a series of six federal grand jury indictments, based on anti-trust laws, which were returned September 1, 1939, and then sealed. The alleged conspiracies date back to 1920 and up to and including September 1, 1939.

The indictments were based partly, the anti-trust division of the attorney general's office said, on an investigation of fertilizers which started in 1938.

Indictments charged that the conspiracies extended through restrictive and secret contracts with producers and marketers of various nitrates throughout the world, including such countries as Canada, England, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Germany, Poland, Belgium, Japan and Chile.

The nitrates which the defendants allegedly conspired to control are used as fertilizers in agriculture, steel mill operations, gas plants, waterworks and other industries.

Named in the indictments were the following corporations: Allied Chemical & Dye Company, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, the Barrett Company, Semet-Solvay Company, Imperial Chemical Industries (New York) Ltd., Anglo-Chilean Nitrate Corporation (Chile), Lautaro Nitrate Company, Ltd. (Great Britain), Chilean Nitrate Sales Corporation, Synthetic Nitrogen Products Corporation, Chilean Nitrate & Iodine Sales Corporation (Chile), all with headquarters in New York, and the Solvay Process Company, Syracuse, N. Y.

Denials Issued.

Most of the individuals named are officers and employees of the defendant corporations. Some of the individual and corporate defendants were named in at least two indictments.

The Allied Chemical & Dye Company and its subsidiaries, the Barrett Company, Semet-Solvay Company and the Solvay Process Company, issued a statement denying charges against them.

The Chilean Nitrate Sales Corporation also issued a statement denying "in every respect the reported charges made against it by the Department of Justice in its indictment against the nitrogen industry."

U. S. Explains Delay.

Medley G. B. Whelpley, president of the Anglo-Chilean Nitrate Corporation and the Lautaro Nitrate Company, Ltd., said in a statement that the two companies were engaged solely in production and under Chilean law the export was handled exclusively by the Chilean Nitrate & Iodine Sales Corporation, "which is a quasi-governmental instrument of the Chilean government."

NO LAW VIOLATED

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 4.—(AP)—W. S. Carpenter Jr., president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company, named with 10 other corporations in a series of New York indictments charging a worldwide chain of conspiracies to control prices and production of nitrates, said in a statement today that the company had violated no law and "is making an aid and will make every effort to aid in meeting the nation's needs for defense."

Proposals to repeal the Johnson law and the neutrality law's ban on credits to belligerent nations have been made by some legislators. Since a congressional bloc has served notice it would fight the repeals, a considerable length of time must obviously elapse before explicit action can be taken.

Senator Nye, Republican, Nebraska, is backing a proposal that there be a thorough investigation of Britain's financial resources here before any credits are granted. His idea has formidable backing, including the approval of Senator George.

While both the RFC and the treasury could make loans to Britain, in the opinion of some authorities, the head men of those institutions are not at all anxious to fly in the face of congress by doing so, and certainly not without first taking the legislators into their confidence.

Morgenstern, in fact, promised some time ago that no loans to belligerent governments from the stabilization fund would be made without first consulting the interested committees of both houses. This was done recently in connection with a sizable loan to China.

Jones' associates say that his attitude is the same.

At his press conference today, Jones declined to amplify his statement about Britain being a good risk, but in answer to a question whether the Johnson act should be repealed, he replied: "Not now."

ferring to labor and management troubles which have caused interruptions in some instances. He made it plain, however, that he was not advocating nationalization of industry or any other form of government control of private plants.

Later, Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, of the Federal Reserve Board, said that in a speech November 28 in New York, he had asserted:

"I believe that congress, in considering all the interrelated elements of the monetary picture, should consider whether or not it would be wise to make credits available at low rates, as a means of aiding the British, taking as collateral their gold, as well as their security holdings here, in Canada or elsewhere."

Eccles released what he termed a "full and correct" text of his speech before the National Industrial Conference Board. He said he was doing this because "incorrect and misleading accounts" had appeared.

All these developments followed an extraordinary meeting at the treasury yesterday, attended by nine high government officials and called, it was said today, to discuss Phillips' mission in advance of his arrival in the city.

In view of the continuing stress that England has placed upon claims that England must have financial assistance if she is to buy here the implements with which to stand off the Nazi attackers, many saw that question, and the controversy attached to it, quickly approaching the boiling point.

How soon a decision could be expected was problematical, and some thought the President's absence from the city on a fortnight's Caribbean cruise indicated that nothing would be done immediately, although it was taken as a foregone conclusion that officials here were keeping him advised of developments in detail.

Two statutes, the Johnson act and the neutrality law, prohibit loans to Great Britain, except that some officials interpret them as having no application to two great pools of money here from which sizable loans could be drawn. They are the Treasury's Stabilization Fund, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Proposals to repeal the Johnson law and the neutrality law's ban on credits to belligerent nations have been made by some legislators. Since a congressional bloc has served notice it would fight the repeals, a considerable length of time must obviously elapse before explicit action can be taken.

Senator Nye, Republican, Nebraska, is backing a proposal that there be a thorough investigation of Britain's financial resources here before any credits are granted. His idea has formidable backing, including the approval of Senator George.

While both the RFC and the treasury could make loans to Britain, in the opinion of some authorities, the head men of those institutions are not at all anxious to fly in the face of congress by doing so, and certainly not without first taking the legislators into their confidence.

Morgenstern, in fact, promised some time ago that no loans to belligerent governments from the stabilization fund would be made without first consulting the interested committees of both houses. This was done recently in connection with a sizable loan to China.

At his press conference today, Jones declined to amplify his statement about Britain being a good risk, but in answer to a question whether the Johnson act should be repealed, he replied: "Not now."

At the State Department, meanwhile, Secretary Hull said he knew of no specific plan for loans to England having been officially advanced, although that might come at some future time. He said all phases of the question of helping England with ships were under consideration.

In defense commission quarters, meanwhile, it was said that managers of key industries producing equipment needed by the British might be called into conference here to discuss means of speeding up production, possibly by the expansion of production facilities.

The text of Eccles' speech indicated that he mentioned the lending of money to the British as an alternative "to continuing to accumulate more and more of the world's gold supply at the cost of inflating our banking and credit structure."

Aides said that he meant that the British were going to sell us their gold anyway, and he believed the inflationary effect of gold imports could be offset by equivalent loans to Great Britain.

FINANCES STRONG.

SIR FREDERICK SAYS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The financial condition of England was "never stronger," Sir Frederick Phillips, under-secretary of the British treasury, declared when he arrived by Clipper today en route to Washington.

Sir Frederick, who said he expected to confer with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, asserted, "I anticipate that they will want to know the general facts of the financial situation, which I shall give them."

Lord Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, on his return to this country November 23, declared Britain's financial problem was "becoming urgent" and that his country was "beginning to come to the end of her financial resources."

Sir Frederick, when asked whether he was here to discuss credits, replied, "That is a stage further on."

At present, he said, British purchases were being paid for ahead of delivery, but "we can't go on buying from reserves forever." He cited daily spendings of $45,000,000 as proof of the financial strength of England.

Axis and Vichy Diplomats Will Seek Harmony

Italian Reverses Expected To Lessen Demands Made on France.

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 4.—(AP) A conference between foreign ministers of the Rome-Berlin Axis and France to seek a "postarmistice but prepeace" settlement was reported imminent in diplomatic quarters here tonight.

Pierre Laval, vice premier and foreign minister of France, was expected to meet both Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano of Italy this week or early next week, possibly in Munich, to smooth out points of friction.

CLIMBERS MAY SIGN.

Voluntary registration of mountaineers with National Park Rangers has been recommended by Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes in an attempt to save the lives of amateur climbers who attempt foolhardy ascents.

English Sign Trade Treaty With Turkey

Nazis, Meanwhile, Complete Sweeping Pact With Rumania.

By the Associated Press.

Germany and Great Britain strengthened their economic ties in southeastern Europe and the Near East yesterday, signing trade and financial agreements with Rumania and Turkey, respectively.

Rumania, already in the Nazi military orbit as a signer of the tripartite alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan, concluded a sweeping, 10-year agreement with the Reich. The Rumanians contracted to improve markets in their state for German goods while the Germans promised to extend liberal credits, and provide machines and technical aid for production on Rumanian farms.

Complements Pact.

The British agreement with Turkey is a complement of a trade and payments pact signed last February 3 between Britain and her non-belligerent ally in the east.

The British, in stepping up the pace of their diplomatic efforts, signed a new commercial agreement with Spain only this week.

Coinciding with the Berlin announcement of the Rumanian pact, the newspaper Curentul in Bucharest, frequently called the Nazi mouthpiece in Rumania, frankly pointed out that Germany expects smaller European nations to lend their armies, their territory and their transport facilities to the Rome-Berlin Axis for a spring offensive.

See New Front.

The newspaper did not say in what direction the offensive would go but informed observers expect Turkey and the Near East to become a battleground either this winter or next spring, with oil and the Suez Canal as prime objectives of the Axis.

Rumania, meanwhile expropriated all oil pipe lines, pumping stations, reservoirs and land on which they are situated in a decree affecting hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property of the Standard Oil-owned Romano Americano.

Another decree ordered seizure of all Danube barges, tugs, tankers and sea-going ships owned and used by companies with Jewish stockholders. This will enable Premier General Ion Antonescu's government to seize American and British-owned properties if he desires, it was pointed out, since they have Jewish stockholders.

Count Csaky May Pay

A Visit to Belgrade

BELGRADE, Yugo-Slavia, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Informed sources said today that Count Csaky, the Hungarian foreign minister, may visit

Belgrade within the near future. There was some suggestion that a non-aggression pact between Hungary and Yugo-Slavia might be contemplated.

To give employment and to get employment . . . a Want Ad in The Constitution is equally effective in both cases.

'Certain' Draft Advisors Are Given Warning

Complaints of Efforts To Charge for Service Are Made.

Complaints that "certain" members of draft advisory boards in Fulton county have attempted to charge prospective draftees from $1 to $3 for helping fill out deferment questionnaires yesterday brought a warning from Adjutant General Marion Williamson that such practices are illegal.

In making public the complaints, General Williamson said this service should be given free by advisory boards, and to attempt to make a charge is a violation of special provisions in the selective service act, and carries a "severe penalty" for those found guilty. Whether the reported infractions were the result of a misinterpretation of the terms of appointments given advisors by Governor Rivers or whether they are a conscious violation of the law, General Williamson would not say. He added, however, that "on the whole the 500 members of advisory boards to registrants are generously giving their time in assisting the registrants. Advisory board members are to serve without pay in aiding illiterate registrants fulfill selective service obligations, the selective service chief said.

Rev. Schilling Resigns; Goes To Florida

Episcopal Leader Will Be Rector of St. Augustine Church.

The Rev. Charles F. Schilling, canon of the Cathedral of St. Philip and rector of the Church of Our Savior since January, 1935, has resigned to become rector of Trinity church, St. Augustine, Fla., it was announced yesterday. Canon Schilling served the diocese of Atlanta as registrar, director of Camp Mikell for young people at Toccoa, Ga., as a member of the executive board of the diocese, being chairman of the publicity department, as deputy to the general convention which met recently in Kansas City, Mo., as trustee for the Appleton church home, Macon, and also as trustee of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn.

He graduated from the University of Georgia and the theological department of the University of the South. He is president of the Atlanta clergies, composed of the Episcopal ministers of Atlanta. Canon and Mrs. Schilling will reside in St. Augustine after January 1.

Miller Defeats John Greer for Lakeland Post

LAKELAND, Ga., Dec. 4.—(P)—Tom Miller, brother of W. L. Miller, State Highway chairman, today was elected mayor of Lakeland, home town of Governor Rivers.

Miller defeated John W. Greer, a lieutenant in the Rivers' administration, by 164 to 147. Greer is clerk of the house of representatives and publisher of the Cordele Dispatch.

Miller will succeed R. L. Patten, father of State Highway Commissioner Lawson L. Patten, as mayor.

The new mayor also won reelection as Lanier county representative in the legislature in the November general election. He also is city and county attorney.

2 Die, 2 Injured In Auto Collision

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. DALLAS, Ga., Dec. 4.—Eugene Edwards, son of former Judge Price Edwards, of the Tallapoosa circuit, and J. P. Brown were killed, and Rether Blockwelder and Elizabeth Stewart injured tonight when the car in which they were riding collided with a loaded lumber truck on the Rockmart highway, seven miles from here. Miss Stewart and Miss Blockwelder were admitted to the hospital of Dr. J. I. Matthews. All were from Buchanan, Ga. Rufus Garner, of Yorkville, truck driver, suffered bruises. Details of the crash were not learned.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with burning and stinging show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Knox Stops Over In Florida on Tour

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 4.—(P)—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox rested here tonight after a flight by land and seaplane from Washington on the way to inspect hemisphere defense bases in Panama and the Caribbean.

Included on his eight-day itinerary was a visit to the navy's exercises at the uninhabited island of Culebra, not far from Puerto Rico. President Roosevelt, on a two-week Caribbean cruise, had said he might see the maneuvers there, but Knox asserted there was no prearrangement for him to meet the President.

The secretary also will inspect the naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, before returning to Miami December 12.

U.S. To Limit Exporting of Machine Tools

Needed Here for Defense Program, Official Declares.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(P)—The government today announced that its control over machine tool exports would be expanded shortly.

Colonel Russell L. Maxwell, administrator of export control, said the export licensing system would be extended after December 10 to a long list of machine tools "hitherto exempted in our desire to minimize restrictions on normal export business." He said this step was required by "the increased pace of the national defense program."

Placing an article under the export licensing system makes it necessary to obtain a government license in order to ship the article abroad. The license may be refused if officials decide the national defense requires it.

Well informed persons said Great Britain and countries of the western hemisphere would undoubtedly be given first consideration in the licensing of any machine tool exports that United States defense needs would permit. The United Kingdom is now the principal importer of United States machine tools. Canada, Russia, Japan and Latin America have been other principal takers.

Yuletide Gift Can Do Good For 365 Days

You Can Help Families on Feet by Giving to 10 Opportunities.

By FRANK DRAKE.

When you wrap up your Christmas gift to the people less fortunate than yourself this year, address it so that it will do good the whole 365 days of 1941.

Write "To the Ten Opportunity Families" across the top and then sit back knowing that your present to the needy helps not alone on December 25 but for every day thereafter for 12 long months.

When you set out to observe the anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ in the manner to which you have become accustomed, KNOW that you have helped a poor family not only to have a happy Christmas but to look forward into 1941 with bright hope and courage—determined to whip despair and tragedy and to become self-supporting!

Give a Little.

Suppose you just give a dollar or so to some fund for Christmas baskets. Then you say to yourself, "Well, I've helped, I've done my share." Okay, maybe you have helped. But wouldn't you have helped more if you had given your donation to help some family live while it got back on its own feet?

Like this: You give a little, your neighbor gives a little, hundreds of others give a little, and first thing you know a large sum has piled up and one, two, maybe three entire families have been assured of a chance to beat sickness or injuries or death or desertion and to become completely independent—not needing the opportunity of anyone and even able to help others as they were helped. That is what small contributions to the Ten Opportunity fund can and do do.

Happiness for You.

So, no matter how little the donation you have to give—it helps tremendously. And it helps make merriment on December 25, 1940, and for 365 days of 1941. Its the cheapest cheer you can buy. . . . Cheer at Christmas time for the city's neediest and most deserving families and happiness to you in the knowledge you have helped others.

In a few days, the stories of these needy and worthwhile families will be told in The Constitution, which presents the Opportunity Families each year at Christmas time in co-operation with the Family Welfare Society. Read them and try your best to help. No gift is too small.

Liquor Dispensers Forget the Election

Yesterday was city election day, something nobody seemed to know, not even the liquor stores which are required by law to close.

The election, it may be explained, was merely the confirmation of the names of those selected in the city Democratic primary last September.

Police were the only ones busy. They spent an hour in the early afternoon closing up liquor stores, on orders of Chief M. A. Hornsby who decided that, balloting or no balloting, it was officially election day in Atlanta.

By 2 o'clock all were shut tight. And members of the electorate presumably were able to make a sober choice between the candidates, if there had been any choice to make.

Inter-Civic Council To Meet Tuesday

Joint meeting of all the civic organizations of the Atlanta area will be held at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening at the Erlanger theater, under the sponsorship of the Inter-Civic Council of Fulton and DeKalb Counties, Mrs. H. R. O'Quinn, secretary, has announced.

Among the speakers will be Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge and Mayor-elect Roy LeCraw. The Girls' Military Band will furnish the music. All civic organizations in the area whether affiliated with the Inter-Civic Council or not have been invited to send representatives.

Demonstration Council In Cobb Elects Officers

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Carl Hamby, of the Roswell Road Home Demonstration Club, was chosen president of the Cobb county council at the annual meeting yesterday. Chosen to serve with her are Mrs. J. W. Hicks, Blackwell, vice president; Mrs. Tom Hardy, Conners, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Raymond Gaines, Due West, 4-H Club sponsor; Mrs. G. F. Sams, Olive Springs, reporter; Mrs. J. E. Groover, Campground, project chairman.

The annual "spend-the-day" Christmas party of council members has been set for December 19, beginning at 10:30 o'clock.

Colquitt Housing Board Gets Permanent Status

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MOULTREE, Ga., Dec. 4.—The Colquitt County Rural Housing Board was made a permanent organization yesterday when the board of county commissioners adopted a resolution authorizing it and paving the way for a government-sponsored program to replace dilapidated farm dwellings in the county with modern homes ranging in price from $1,000 to $2,000 in value.

Under the new set-up, Alex Hall is chairman of the housing board. Other members include B. S. Rice Jr., Herman Green, W. T. Baker and J. T. Walters.

The Army IN GEORGIA

The Army Air Corps' 30th Reconnaissance Squadron, at Candler Field, has been activated and preparations for its organization are under way, Fourth Corps Area headquarters announced yesterday.

Announcement that the squadron would be stationed in Atlanta was made several weeks ago.

The outfit, according to present plans will have 60 officers, 300 enlisted men and 13 planes. A training cadre of 33 men has already been assigned to the airport.

NAVY WANTS TO RECRUIT 370 MEN THIS MONTH

Navy hopes to recruit 370 men this month out of the Georgia-Florida district, Atlanta recruiting substation attaches said yesterday, announcing they had been given an unlimited quota for the month.

Minimum age has been lowered from 18 to 17, and the station will be open on Sunday mornings to examine applicants whose jobs prevent their coming around during the week.

After enlistment, sailors are sent to training school at Norfolk for a five-week course and then given 10 to 15 days' leave to visit their families before they are assigned.

COLONEL CONSIDINE "INDUCTED" INTO ARMY

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., Dec. 4.—Posing as an "illiterate and ignorant country boy," Lieutenant Colonel John Considine, commanding officer of the Sixth Cavalry, today was taken through a "null and void" induction into the United States army.

Colonel Considine was re-inducted into the army this morning as a final personal check on the post induction and temporary reception center, which will receive the first group of 66 West Tennessee draftees tomorrow evening.

"I acted dumb to what I might test the ingenuity of the officers here. But the officers did an admirable job. We are now ready to receive the first contingent of draftees," Colonel Considine said today.

All of the draftees from Tennessee will be inducted into the army here. The first group will come from Memphis, Waverly, Huntsgton, Lexington and Somerville. The second group will arrive here Thursday afternoon from several East Tennessee cities.

CAPTAIN CLAYBROOK VISITS OGLETHORPE

FORT OGLETHORPE, Ga., Dec. 4.—Captain John Claybrook, of the chief of cavalry's office of the United States army, arrived here this morning for an inspection of the new mechanized equipment of the Sixth Cavalry.

Captain Claybrook is the guest here of Major James H. Phillips, regimental supply officer, and was taken on a brief inspection tour of the post here this afternoon by Major Phillips.

GENERALS TO ARRIVE AT FORT BENNING

Sixty-eight high ranking officers of the National Guard, including 15 major generals, 35 brigadier generals, 11 colonels and seven lieutenant colonels, will begin arriving at Fort Benning Saturday for a refresher course at the Infantry school designed especially for them. Scheduled work will start on Monday and continue for two weeks.

Numerous demonstrations, some of which will employ large numbers of troops, are being arranged as part of the course. Included will be an attack by the Second Armored Division, and the employment of a combat team of the Fourth Division in a tactical march and in the attack.

Among the major generals and brigadier generals to attend are:

Major General Ralph E. Truman, 30th Division (Mo.)
Brigadier General Lewis M. Means, 70th Infantry Brigade (Mo.)

Georgia Bottlers Will Meet Today

R. G. LeTourneau, of Toccoa, and Robert Strickland, president of the Trust Company of Georgia, will be the principal speakers when the Georgia Bottlers' Association meets at the Henry Grady hotel today and tomorrow.

Other speakers include Wilbur H. Glenn, Columbus, president of the association; E. S. Papp, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, who will deliver the address of welcome; John J. Riley, Washington; Henry N. Casell, Atlanta; T. H. Stanley, Columbus, and Harold Rogers, of Atlanta.

More than 150 delegates will attend, according to Fred S. Gould, Atlanta, secretary of the association. Today's session will close with a dinner and dance at the Athletic Club beginning at 7:15 o'clock tonight. The convention concludes following the election of officers tomorrow.

Keep False Teeth Purified Says Dr. Sherwin

The world progresses—new discoveries make history. Now, thanks to Dr. L. W. Sherwin, a well known authority on oral hygiene, false teeth and dental plates can be made to glisten with purity and immaculate cleanliness with just a 10 minute daily bath, with amazing Stera-Kleen. It's all so easy—just get a 30 cent bottle of Stera-Kleen—drop a pinch in a half glass of lukewarm water—let your dental plate stay in this glass 10 minutes or overnight, as you choose. Take it out, rinse under the cold water faucet—no brushing is needed. Then you get a plate free from slimy mucus and stains—plate sparkling with beauty and glistening with purity. No more dull-looking, murky, dismal false teeth for you—lasts for weeks—30 cents—all drug stores.

U. S. Takes Up Land Options For Big Depot

Work on $20,000,000 Project Expected To Begin by Christmas.

Options on approximately 1,600 acres of land 10 miles southeast of Atlanta for use as the site of the $20,000,000 Fourth Corps Area Quartermaster depot have been taken up by the Army, it was announced yesterday.

Situated in Clayton county just south of the Fulton and DeKalb county lines, the land is bounded on the west by the Central of Georgia railroad and the Jonesboro road, and on the east by the new Macon road and the Southern railway.

Approximate location of the property and details of the depot were announced in The Constitution last month.

Stations nearest the property are Conley on the Southern and Forrest Park on the Central. Work is expected to begin on the project by Christmas.

Plans call for the construction of between 15 and 20 large warehouses to store general army supplies for the eight-state area; spur tracks from the railroads, living quarters for the staff, garages, repair shops and miles of paving. Contour maps have already been made of 500 acres preparatory to grading and other preliminary work. Construction of the buildings is expected to give employment to 1,000 men.

Accidents, Deaths Rise in November

Atlanta's traffic accidents, fatalities and injuries jumped in November over those of the same month of last year.

The figures, made public yesterday by the police traffic bureau, were 347 accidents, three killed and 100 injured as compared with 322 accidents, one killed and 100 injured in the previous November.

FREE-IF ITCHY SKIN NOT EASED IN FIVE MINUTES

If Tetterine doesn't relieve skin itching due to Eczema, Ringworm, Surface Rash, Athlete's Foot, Scabies or innocuous insect bites, it costs you nothing. Get Tetterine from any drugstore (or through Shaptrine Co., Dept. 3, Savannah, Ga.) for 60c, use as directed, and if itching is not relieved in five minutes, keep the box and get your 60c back to boot. (adv.)

ed and 81 injured in November, 1939. Police booked 2,228 alleged traffic law violators in the month just ended as compared with 4,689 in the previous November.

Thus far in 1940 there have been 2,449 accidents, 3 deaths and 744 injuries in contrast to 2,752 accidents, 26 deaths and 887 injuries for the same period of last year.

GEORGIA POWER COMPANY

PRESIDENT—William F. Lynes Jr., president of Georgia Real Estate Association, who will open and preside at two-day session of state convention here.

Georgia Unit Of Real Estate Men To Meet

Two-Day Annual Convention Will Open Here Today.

The 20th annual convention of the Georgia Real Estate Association, with more than 100 delegates present from all cities in Georgia that have a realty board, will open its two-day conference at the Biltmore hotel at 10 o'clock this morning.

The entire day will be consumed in hearing reports from officers, in group luncheons and discussions, and addresses by several of the outstanding speakers of the country on matters touching real estate, including an address at 3 o'clock by Newton C. Farr, of Chicago, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The convention will be called to order by William F. Lynes Jr., of Savannah, president of the association, followed by invocation by the Rev. Ferguson Wood, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church.

After group singing of "God Bless America," Councilman John A. White, local real estate operator, acting for Mayor Hartsfield, will welcome the delegates to the city, the response to be made by Dan Middleton Jr., president of Glynn County Board, Brunswick, Georgia.

More than 100 realtors of Atlanta have registered with Mrs. Louise H. Peacock, secretary of the local board, which will make a total attendance for the convention of more than 200, the largest ever held by the state association.

Dinner Is Held.

Prior to the opening conference this morning, a dinner and business session was held last night at the hotel, attended by the officers, directors and advisory committee of the organization.

The officers of the association are William F. Lynes Jr., Savannah, president; Harry F. Boyce, Columbus, vice president; H. Gould Barrett, Augusta, treasurer; Sharpe D. Wall, Atlanta, secretary.

The directors are Louis Greeno, Savannah; L. B. Thompson, Macon; Paul C. Maddox, Atlanta; William G. Hardeman, Macon; G. Cunby Jordan, Columbus; William A. Garrett, Augusta; Herbert F. Gibbons, Savannah; state councillor, Ward Wight, Atlanta.

The advisory committee is made up of the past presidents of the association—more than 20—and most of them attended the business session.

A prominent speaker during the morning—at 11:30 o'clock—will be Robert K. Christenberry, of New York, who will speak on "Salesmanship."

Hutton to Speak.

From 1 o'clock until 2:30 o'clock, group luncheons will be held, discussing various phases of realty work. These will be presided over by A. H. Sturges, W. J. Hogan Jr. and Paul C. Maddox.

At 2:30 o'clock C. H. Hutton, of Nashville, Tenn., will address the conference on "Mortgage Loans," following which will come the address of the national president.

James V. Carmichael, member of the Georgia legislature from Cobb county, will speak at 3:45 on "Real Estate and Taxes in Georgia."

Attendance prizes will be awarded twice during the day.

At 7:30 o'clock comes the banquet at the hotel, with Ward Wight, of Atlanta, president of the Atlanta board, as toastmaster; introduction of past presidents and awarding of three handsome trophies. Dancing will end the day, beginning at 9:30 o'clock.

Friday's sessions will be more or less a continuation of reports and addresses by prominent speakers, with a quiz contest as the main feature.

Finland Pays Interest

In a land deeply concerned with usury among small loan firms and operators, it is rather startling to read the data covering the Finnish debt. The original loan to Finland, made after the first World War, totaled $8,281,926. Finland has paid each installment as it became due, a total repayment including interest of $5,891,291. But Finland still owes the United States $8,126,622. It has cost her more than $5,000,000 to reduce the principal of her loan by $150,000—in round figures.

Technically, of course, there is no usury involved. Morally, however, it must seriously be questioned whether technicalities should prevail. The loan was made for a specific stated purpose—relief work among a starving populace and rehabilitation of the earning power of the people of this then new nation. Behind that stated purpose, however, was another consideration which is being utilized today again as an integral and now stated purpose of defense, that of bolstering a weak nation against being drawn into the orbit of actual or potential enemies. Our loans to China, happily being repaid by definite trade procedure, are a case in kind. An instance in which this immediate repayment is possible is rare, but here we have a condition in which a nation can provide this country with vitally needed raw materials. In 90 other cases, this would not be possible and was not possible in the instance of Finland. The British credits to Spain, announced only this week, are not made primarily out of love for Franco, but for the very wise reason that they might lessen Axis influence in that Fascist government and possibly forestall an attack by the Germans upon Gibraltar.

The same consideration applied when the loans to Finland were made by this country. Bolshevik sentiment was running high, not only in Russia, but throughout Europe. Finland could serve as a bulwark against that Bolshevism, which this country conceived as a danger, or it could drift into the Red orbit. The loans, in some measure at least, forestalled that possibility.

There is another consideration covering the war debts which has not yet been given due weight. Academically speaking, interest is paid on a business loan as a rental to the lender for the use of the money. It conceives of the money as we conceive of an apartment, for the use of which we pay rent; the possibility being that the rent is used at least in part for the repayment of the loan with which the apartment building was constructed. In other words, we presuppose that the money loaned will be of sufficient lasting value to the borrower to provide both repayment of the loan and payment of interest. Otherwise, there would be little reason for the roles of lender and borrower.

Yet it is an established principle that armament expenditures essentially are non-productive. They do not add to the creative wealth of a nation, but rather constitute new and lasting drains upon wealth. The same holds true of the relief loans to Finland and the other European nations. To the extent that they rehabilitated business and industry they were creative, but for the most part they were merely sustaining loans—they kept up life and order where starvation and anarchy might otherwise have prevailed to the lasting detriment not only of the borrowing nation but also the lending nation.

Would it not be the better part of judgment and fairness for this country, even at this late date, to waive interest on war loans, crediting past payments of interest to repayment of principal? Our present position tends too strongly toward usury, even though technically it can be justified.

"Britain reserves the right to retaliate for Italian air raids on England." But, of course. When in Rome, do as the Romans do, in London.

No great progress is noted in the movement to have us feed Europe. Our political souls may be on our laps, but our hearts are no longer on our sleeves.

Both Serve Freedom

Atlanta this week will play host to two men of international renown, who, by diverse paths, have advanced and protected the independence of American thought and American progress. In the careers of Professor Arthur Holly Compton, who is to lecture at Georgia Tech on Thursday evening, and of Admiral H. E. Yarnell, who will speak at East Point Friday evening and at Emory University Saturday evening, may be seen the divergence and the union of the arts of peace and the arts of war. Each in his separate field has made America great, has given it strength and freedom of thought and action.

Professor Compton from childhood has turned his ever-curious mind upon this dark world of ours to discover its whys and its wherefores; an insatiable lust for the answer to the riddle of the universe has kept him so constantly investigating the nature of light, force and matter that his discoveries have brought him the highest of all science's rewards, the Nobel prize. In Hitler's Germany, such men as Compton would be dictatorial decree be engaged in preparing deadlier engines for the destruction of thought and freedom in the world.

Admiral Yarnell, fierce protector of America's freedom, and with it the freedom of all men everywhere, has adapted the discoveries of science to the protection of learning, of investigation, of questioning, which is the heart and soul of progress. His relentless skill in the Pacific, his unerring devotion to his high calling, his just tenacity in the "Damn the torpedoes" tradition made him a name honored by his friends and feared by the enemies of democracy. He has played no small part in molding our foreign policies in the east.

Each serves his country well in serving it freely; each keeps alive the spirit of free investigation and free enterprise among free men.

Atlanta is honored by the presence of these two men of democratic origin and democratic achievement.

The last figure on the unemployed was 7,000,000 with the losing grid coaches to come.

A Course in Safety

Today and tomorrow, at the Georgia School of Technology, truck and bus operators will attend a short course in highway safety, sponsored by the Motor Vehicle Association of Georgia, Inc.

The purpose of the course is to acquaint the men who operate trucks and buses and who are thus the most frequent and substantial users of the highways, with the latest regulations, equipment and ideas for greater safety. The program for the two days includes discussions, speeches and demonstrations that should prove of invaluable interest to those who attend the course.

The drivers of buses and trucks are, generally speaking, the best of all drivers who use the roads. Constant experience and special training is chiefly responsible for this condition, backed by careful selection of personnel for the jobs. Yet, with constantly increasing highway use, with new hazards constantly being exposed by engineers and those who study the records of accidents all over the country, there is a constant need for even greater understanding of traffic problems and greater care in operation by all these men.

The course at Georgia Tech, today and tomorrow, offers excellent opportunity for keeping abreast with modern safety methods and should be attended by every one connected with the motor transport industry.

In the field of women's tennis, we see that the Marble game will hereafter be for keeps.

Editorial Symposium

I. O. U. VS. C. O. D. TOWARD BRITAIN

Echoing from coast to coast is the announcement by the British ambassador, Lord Lothian, that his nation is near the end of its financial resources in the United States. Considering future help, two opposing views are offered by the BOSTON GLOBE and the KNICKERBOCKER NEWS of Albany:

Pointing out that "most Americans desire England's success," the GLOBE sees "Emotion . . . in conflict with our reasoning powers. . . . Most of us want all reasonable aid given to her. . . . But the era of something for nothing is dead. Experience, sovereignty and policy alike counsel its burial."

Then, declaring that "America will be left alone to face the totalitarian Axis," the KNICKERBOCKER NEWS insists "The British are fighting our battle" and "The question thus seems to be whether we could afford to let down our defenders . . . when aiding them would be safer in the end, to say nothing of cheaper. There are some other considerations of democratic affinity, but they are subordinate to our national interest."

Meanwhile, the SAN FRANCISCO NEWS believes it is "time for a real estate deal" in which Great Britain would sell for munitions credits "her Caribbean possessions and Bermuda" commencing "We may have to pay a steep price for this real estate. . . . But as the price of a permanent screen of bases under the American flag . . . it might not be excessive." And the DALLAS NEWS sees reason in such a deal, saying, "With only friendly powers on this side of the Atlantic, Great Britain does not need the Caribbean islands for defense." However, even though "Britain has territory to barter . . . if the future is regarded solely on a cold-blooded business basis," the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM considers "the answer to that proposition is that the United States needs additional territory no more than it requires British gold."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

BREATHING SPELL FOR TAXPAYERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Although business will probably end by paying the bills as usual, the recent White House conference on taxes produced several remarkable indications of a desire to conciliate businessmen. This was hinted when Senator Pat Harrison later announced there would be no retroactive taxation on business profits for the year 1940. But the background, atmosphere and other decisions of the conference were decidedly more significant than the Harrison announcement.

The Treasury's preconference activities must be classed as background. They began with a study of the general tax picture by Assistant Secretary John Sullivan, who is now the first tax lieutenant of Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr. Although he is an old crony of the New Dealers and served Thomas G. Corcoran faithfully in the early stages of the third-term movement, Sullivan is a practical lawyer by training and a moderate in fiscal questions by inclination. His investigations led him to two conclusions:

(1) That after taking two pretty serious tax bills this year, business ought to be allowed a period of reasonable calm, during which the effects of the existing tax structure might be studied more rewardingly.

(2) That fear of retroactive taxes during the next sessions of congress was leading many corporations to withhold current profits from dividends, in order to build up reserves against the possible evil day to come.

FISCAL MODERATES

Having reached his conclusions, Sullivan flew to Miami, met Secretary Morgenthau returning from a Caribbean cruise, and told his story to his chief. Morgenthau, who is also a fiscal moderate when the President allows him to be, was not overly difficult to convince. When he reached Washington, he bustled off to the White House to tell Sullivan's arguments to the President with additions of his own. There was reason to expect an unnamable response, since a powerful faction in the administration has been advocating punishing war profits taxes to prove to labor that business is not benefiting from the national emergency. Instead, however, Morgenthau found the President entirely receptive. Thus the main decisions were already reached when the White House tax conference was called last Friday.

Those invited to the conference were Senators Harrison and Walter George of Georgia; Representatives Robert Doughton and Jere Cooper, Budget Director Harold Smith and Morgenthau and Sullivan. After the usual family dinner the little party retired to the President's oval study upstairs, where the effect of the advance work of Morgenthau and Sullivan promptly became manifest. Agreement was immediately reached on the need for some such declaration against retroactive taxes as was later contained in the Harrison announcement. Sullivan's second conclusion was debated more fully, but accepted in the end. The decision was to regard no tax proposals as final until after March 15, and to do nothing about a tax program until that date, except to hold preliminary hearings, investigate such programs as might be independently offered, and in general clear away the underbrush.

NEW BUDGETARY THEORY

The President then wound up the meeting with a general disquisition on the budget, in which he disclosed a fascinatingly new version of his budgetary theory. It will be remembered how he used to divide government expenditures into the "regular budget," which was always "balanced," and the "emergency budget," composed of spending for such things as relief, which was never balanced. Now there is a new division, under which the old "emergency budget" becomes "regular," along with most other ordinary spending, while the "defense budget" is the unbalanced one. As all army and navy appropriations, including those customarily made in the past, are lumped under this unbalanced "defense budget," it is possible for the President to say that his "regular budget" for this fiscal year will be only $458,000,000 out of balance, and will be fully balanced thereafter. He most likely will say just that in his budget message next month.

That impressed those present at the conference, however, was not so much the President's agility with budgetary theory, or anything else he said, so much as what he omitted to say. Usually, at these tax conferences, he demands flatly that business be taxed in this way or that, and grounds his demand on business' high crimes and misdemeanors. There was none of this last Friday. Instead, his tone was cheerful, almost gay. He was emphatic as to the wisdom of acting in haste, even on the problem of tax-exempt securities which should have been amply investigated by now. And he plainly intimated that he wished to make no specific recommendations to his congressional tax leaders.

WITHOUT WAR WHOOPS As has been said, despite all these hopeful signs business will probably pay the bills in the end. Both the President and the Treasury are bitterly opposed to sales taxes. Neither desires great increases in income taxation in the really low brackets. Taxes on business profits are the only ones proposed which promise sizeable yield. Yet, even so, business will apparently be taxed in a kindly manner, politely, without war whoops. As a tomahawk and a loincloth of scalp used to be the standard uniform of the New Deal tax planners, the approach is at least to be different. And that, no doubt, is something.

Delights of Procrastination.

So many people seem to be firmly wedded to the idea that the best time to do anything in the world is the last possible moment in which it can be done, that I have lately been conducting a one-man voyage of discovery, while the clock ticks, to understand what are the peculiar delights of procrastination. Much of that one-man investigation, I must confess, has been a self cross-examination, but then one average sample is all you really need to get an insight into public reactions, isn't it?

I find, for one startling fact, that most of the people who procrastinate about Christmas gift buying do so because of the great happiness they experience in fighting through mobs around the store counters, having their corns trodden underfoot and in being generally goaded and tromped upon. Strange, isn't it, what some people will do for pleasure?

There is, too, the added advantage of having a choice of presents for anybody. The choosy ones have all been there, purchased and gone and, if you buy your presents on December 24, you simply take whatever is left. That saves a lot of worry over finding suitable gifts.

Of course, the gifts you do give are never what the recipients wanted and they may be somewhat declassified from being handled so much by earlier shoppers than you. And, discarded, of course. But mainly does it matter if the doll for Minnie has one eye missing or if grandpaw's tie is torn? You just explain, "all they had," and let it go at that.

There are so many advantages in last-minute shopping.

That Leak

There's that leak in the roof, another example of joy in delay. Your wife has been asking you for weeks to get a new roof on it, but you put it off. So much trouble to get up and telephone. And what's the hurry, anyway, it isn't raining?

Then, a couple of months later, it does rain, hard, and you call the roofer and desperately, sorry, he can't do anything until the rain stops. So, eventually, you pay three times as much for the repairs as they would have cost in the first place and also pay for the cleaning of the rug whereon the water dripped desperately. Write takes advantage of the opportunity to wangle a new rug entirely.

And look at all the fun you have writing checks for sums you'd never had to approximate if you'd

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

(The views expressed here are Mr. Pegler's own.)

Sensitive Clan

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The reinstatement of the New York Times correspondent in Rome, whence he had been expelled for offensive interpretation of the news, has given rise to a hope that a similar adjustment may be made between Mr. Harold Ross, editor of the New Yorker, and the press ministry of the Stork Club. It may be recalled that the press ministry of the Stork Club recently canceled Mr. Ross' visa, pointed to the frontier and told him not to come back. This action involved a serious question of the freedom of the press, because the expulsion was ordered in retaliation for something which the editor had published about the dean of the gent's-room corps of journalists, an elite and temperamental group.

It appears that the journalists of this sensitive clan have become the successor of the late Harry Lehr, who was the social tyrant of New York 40 years ago. Mr. Lehr in his day, with an impatient look of his lovely head, the merest suggestion of a pout or a narrowing of his pretty foot, could exclude from the haunts of polite society anyone who displeased him.

Since society moved into the saloons, however, this arbitrary authority has gradually been assumed by the journalists of the saloon beat, and is exercised through their power to advertise or omit from their dispatches all mention of any place whose proprietor admits persons of whom they disapprove. Most journalists believe that their economic life is in the hands of the journalists of the gent's-room corps, figuring that in return for frequent free mention in print they can well afford to intrude on their tables and embarrassing publicity. On the other hand, if they do not receive free publicity they may have to fold up.

Variety Of Results

This attitude has produced a variety of results. Some customers are so eager for personal publicity that they welcome attention and others are so fearful of reprisal in the press that they submit, anyway. There is also a danger that a client who tells a journalist of the gent's-room corps to get away from his table will be turned in to the management as an undesirable person and blackballed the next time he wants to impress an out-of-town customer with his entree to the best saloons.

Thus, from the status of more or less obsequious moodie in the days of the speakies, to be seated at a small and rickety table near the kitchen and buffeted by the swinging doors as the waiters went in and out, the journalist of this corps has now become himself a social celebrity of high degree. He commands the most prominent table, where he may be easily pointed out, and it would be dangerous in the extreme for a proprietor to decline to provide the best accommodations for a member of the corps, even though cash customers were lined up 10 deep outside.

A few proprietors have taken the opposite view, and one of these has gone so far as to exclude practically the entire corps—by indirect methods, it is true, but with satisfactory results.

Mortal Affront

The method in this case was not to keep out the members of the corps but to treat them as gentlemen—which, of course, is a mortal affront to a gent's-room journalist. Forbidden to sit in the laps of the customers, to ask them questions of intimate, personal nature and to spread notebooks conspicuously on the main table, the journalist of this special corps immediately becomes aware that his celebrity has been impugned and that he has lost himself by refusing to return to a place where such indignity awaits him.

The result is that in a short time the entire corps drops away, and the proprietor is able to pass the word that his customers are free from molestation. Rather oddly, notwithstanding the publicity boycott, saloons observing this policy have been known to prosper greatly.

Holding that an important principle is at stake, Mr. Ross has refused to apply for a new visa for the Stork Club, although it is understood that the press minister has relented and would meet him half way. Indeed, Mr. Ross has said he is delighted to know that wherever he goes all members of the corps will abruptly leave as a social exterminator whose very presence in a saloon is guaranteed to eliminate gent's-room journalists.

Appreciates Space Given Conference

Editor Constitution: In my report to the conference board of lay activities I expressed appreciation of the work of Dr. Thomas M. Elliott in reporting the activities of our board.

I should also like to express my appreciation to you and The Constitution for the generous space you have given to Dr. Elliott's writings in connection with the conference just closed. I think he has done a good job and I am sure that our conference as a whole is grateful for the services rendered by him and by your paper.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

GRADY AND BASEBALL

Most of baseball's "names," large and small, are gathered in our town this week in their annual convention, baseball's largest.

The delegates wear a badge which has on it, in metal, a likeness of Henry Woodfin Grady, the man who won international fame as editor of The Atlanta Constitution more than half a century ago.

Why this likeness of Grady on a baseball convention badge? A very good reason.

Henry Grady was the first president of the first Southern baseball league. He saw, in his day, that it was a great game of the people; that it was the American game. Baseball did not enjoy a very good reputation. The "best" people did not attend. It was unorganized. It was composed, in the south, of "city clubs."

In the fall of 1894 the baseball officials of the cities met at Montgomery, Ala., and organized the first Southern league. They asked Henry W. Grady to be president, because he held the respect of all the people of the south. They wanted a president who would give the new venture some standing and recognition.

There was a terrific row. Baseball is famous for them. Augusta, for a time, had two teams in the league. Augusta enjoyed two city clubs and neither would give way. Other teams wanted in. There were revisions. There was one boiling party. Atlanta pulled out and formed a rival league.

Grady stood firm. The parent organization had his support and prestige. And at last it was settled. The schedule was made. And the league played out its schedule.

THE FIRST LANDIS

Henry W. Grady was the first Judge Landis. He insisted on discipline and good conduct on the part of the players.

So strict was his discipline that some of the teams, including his home-town team of Atlanta, threatened to withdraw. Charges of gambling were frequent. Grady maintained close supervision despite the fact his duties as editor occupied most of his day. Demands upon him for speaking and for writing special articles were constant. He represented many New York and eastern city newspapers, an important position in those days before the organization of news services.

He spoke in Texas, in Boston, in all parts of the nation, preaching unity. He was healing the wounds of the Civil War. He was encouraging, pleading and demanding of Georgia that she and the south develop their own resources. Many of his observations were exactly those of the President's report of two years ago which labeled the south "Economic Problem."

Yet he found time to head the turbulent first baseball league in the south.

Often he covered the games, dictating the stories to his secretary, James Holliday, who still is living in Atlanta with a keen memory of Grady and the days of Grady.

The baseball writers really ought to make Jim Holliday, a splendid gentleman, an honorary member of their organization. He was reporting baseball about the time their fathers and mothers were babies, or, for that matter, before some of the fathers and mothers of the present-day reporters were born.

THE CLUBHOUSE

Ball players and fans today speak of "the clubhouse" and know it as a place under the grandstand where ball players dress for the game.

Not always was it so. Once it was a clubhouse.

Henry W. Grady Jr., son of the famous editor, and Jim Holliday, recall that clubhouse. They had a clubhouse because cricket had one.

The clubhouse had a wide veranda. It looked out on the ball park. On the veranda sat members of the club and their guests. On the Atlanta clubhouse sat the famous Ben Hill, in company with Grady. There, too, once or twice at least, sat the famous Bob Toombs, member of the Confederate war cabinet and later a general, who never took the oath of allegiance. Many famous men of the Confederacy were to sit on the clubhouse veranda and watch Atlanta, the first Atlanta team in the first Southern league, play baseball.

It is a story not widely known.

When Grady died at the untimely age of 39, victim of pneumonia contracted after his greatest triumph in Boston, Puck devoted a page to his death. And all the newspapers of the Union mourned him. In the books written of him, most of them hurriedly after his death, none told of his part in baseball.

Tuesday evening I had the pleasure of telling Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, named for our mountain near Marietta, of this phase of Henry Grady's life.

"I remember," how that Boston speech swept the nation like an electric current," he said. "I am delighted to know of Grady's baseball history."

This is why The Constitution takes a special pride in this convention. It is a great convention, the largest baseball offers. And it is fitting that the delegates should have on their badges the man who did more to make baseball the game of the people in the south than any other one man—the immortal Henry Woodfin Grady—newspaperman, editor, orator, baseball fan.

A Fable Concerning a Gullible Youth and What He Got by Wishing

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

A handsome and agreeable young Arab named Ben Ali inherited a small fortune which made him feel secure for a time but quickly made him acquainted with the perils of mankind.

New-found friends borrowed his money and thereafter ignored him. Attractive strangers sold him jewelry which proved to be worthless. Pompous men of apparent affluence sold him shares in enterprises that promised enormous profits, and all of these proved to be frauds.

Ben Ali began to be afraid of the world.

One morning as he strolled down the street meditating on the meanness of man, he stopped in front of a public building, without realizing where he was, and said to himself: "What I need is a great ferocious dog endowed with miraculous insight to guard me against enemies. If one approached me smiling and pretending friendship, the dog would smell the hypocrisy of him and growl a warning. Nobody could trick me then."

Excited by this thought, he cried: "Oh, I wish I had a guardian to warn and protect me against the enemy."

"All right, young man," said the City Wish Fulfiler, who sat near an open window. "Each citizen is entitled to have one wish granted, and I here and now grant yours. Go your way and peace go with you."

"Peace go with you," said Ben Ali politely, and he walked away feeling happy and safe.

But before the day was half gone a cute little blonde had nicked his bankroll and a friendly stranger had somehow obtained his watch. Ben Ali hastened back to the public building, full of righteous wrath.

"You fooled me," he growled at the official Wish Fulfiler. "The dog didn't show up."

"The dog?" echoed the official. "You mentioned no dog. You wished for a guardian to warn and protect you from your enemy. Well, a man is his own worst enemy, is he not?"

"I have never thought of the matter in that way," said Ben Ali, "but perhaps you are right."

"Of course I am right," said the official. "And I gave you the guardian you wish for."

"But I haven't seen him," complained Ben Ali.

"It isn't a he," said the official, "but it isn't visible. It is called a conscience. You will seldom be swindled badly unless you co-operate with the swindler in hope of getting something without deserving it."

"It's no use, Madame, he insists he's going to be a test pilot."

"Personal" Adv.
On Tombstone
Away Back in 1800

Adage that "advertising pays" was understood and accepted as far back as 1800, if Case and Comment, a lawyers' journal, may be credited. It quotes an obituary on a tombstone at Lincoln, Maine: Sacred to the Memory of Jared Bates

Who Died August 6th, 1800.
His widow, Aged 24, Lives at 7 Elm Street
Has every justification for a Good Wife
And Years to be Comforted.

It's too late to check up now, but I wonder if the weeping widow's ad produced results. Was she comforted? And for how long? Her "personal" failed to state how many acres she owned and whether the farm was mortgaged. Or whether she was blond or brunette or red-headed. So it may have brought no results.

Managers of classified ad departments urge advertisers to make everything clear. But carving a tombstone is vastly more expensive than using a four-line, seven-time classified ad in a paper.

I wish I had the dope on the widow of Jared Bates, aged 24. I used to know a girl named Alice Bates—probably a descendant of the widow of Jared would be something else. Besides, Alice ran away from home with a patent medicine peddler who could play the guitar. And maybe did well.

"Bow the Knee."

Small card, inscribed by hand in black and red ink, ornaments a telephone pole on Peachtree road—or did yesterday. It reads: FATHER DIVINE IS GOD HE ALONE REIGNS. EVERY KNEE MUST BOW. EVERY TONGUE CONFESS. I copied the inscription on the back of a gas bill. It would have been easier to tear off the card and stick it in my pocket.

But why do that? I have seen many a statement hardly more exaggerated tacked to telephone poles in political campaign years. The telephone company frowns upon use of its poles for advertising purposes, but that's not my affair. I sold my stock in 1931.

I do not believe that Father Divine is God, but I have no objection to his disciples believing it if they so desire. Maybe it makes them happier. And there have been—and are—many sects among the white folks which seem equally as nutty to a person of a conservative and orthodox faith.

From all I read in the papers none of Father Divine's people go hungry. And I do see hungry men and women and children on Atlanta's streets. Probably they don't go to church. They've no clothes decent enough.

Unlicensed Poetry.

Channing Cope owns a farm away out beyond Covington, with sheep and cattle and a Scottie named Robert Burns. He said, as I remember, there are 400—or maybe 500—acres of it, which is the depth of understatement, because he walked me all over it, choosing plowed ground when possible, regardless of a convenient path, and brought me back feeling like one of those footsore and all-in tenderfeet who had been lost in the desert and tramped a thousand miles across the burning sands.

But the reason I mention my personal travail is because Mr. Cope addressed the Civitan Club last week, and discussed improved methods of agriculture. I wouldn't mind that, because I didn't have to hear him. What makes me sore is that his address inspired Ernest Rogers, who edits the Civitan's Club publication, to write a poem only excusable because of its brevity. I quote it in full:

"Channing Cope
Is the Farmer's Hope."

Real Optimists.

because this is Optimists' Week. Just two little definitions of an optimist which came in the mail—sponsored locally by the Atlanta Optimists' Club.

"A pessimist puts 2 and 2 together and gets 4. An optimist puts 2 and 2 together and gets 22." —Martha Crowe, 1069 Virginia avenue.

"My idea of an optimist is a toll-worn woman who can present smilingly to her husband losing his lifetime job a new Christmas wallet—to put his future earnings in." —Mrs. Owen Burk, 185 Fourth street, N. W.

Looking over the Georgia weekly exchanges I run across so many editors named Ham I am sure the family is almost as well represented in newspaperdom as in the movies.

Mariettans Fete

Departing Troops

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Dec. 4.—Merchants and businessmen to-night entertained members of Battery E, 214th Coast Artillery, at a barbecue and dance prior to their departure tomorrow for Hinesville.

Sponsored by the Marietta Merchants' Association, the farewell party was held at the fairgrounds, where guardsmen have been holding drill sessions during the week. Equipment and supplies of the local unit will join a convoy from the Cedartown and Calhoun batteries here tomorrow and proceed to Camp Stewart.

Another "send-off" is expected at the Marietta depot tomorrow night when the battery entrains.

Constitution Want Ads are going for speedy merchandising results.

WHY NO SCREEN TESTS FOR MALE ASPIRANTS?

Editor Constitution: Guy Bates Post, the eminent actor, recently made a statement, which was published in your paper, that there is a shortage of male actors in Hollywood and that every studio was interested in finding new leading men.

It therefore strikes us as a bit peculiar that the M-G-M group now in the city is interested solely in female talent and is definite in their resolve to interview no male aspirants during their present stay. The only logical reasoning we can find is that the present search for talent is mainly a publicity stunt for "Gone With the Wind." Even that does not quite suffice as an answer because there is a character, and a rather important one, we are led to believe, in that epic who answered to the name of Rhett Butler.

All of which brings us to the reason for this letter. Why not prevail on Mr. Carrier to hold interviews for men and have him pick out two or three with promise to play Rhett opposite the girls he has selected to portray Scarlett in the screen tests. Men are more reticent than girls to apply for acting parts, so it should not take over a day or so to interview those who are interested.

If only for the sake of fair play as regards the "stronger" sex, I believe this should be brought to Mr. Carrier's attention.

JOHN STAUNTON.

Atlanta.

Good Morning

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Read this striking paragraph in a magazine the other night: "Church members may be divided into three general classes in a mere 'skeleton' outline: the wishbones, the jawbones and the backbones. The wishbones are always languidly hoping that the church will grow and prosper without their help. The jawbones, of course, do the criticizing. And the backbones, well, they just get under the load and carry it along."

Not a bad analysis. Nor is it entirely applicable to the church. I have a notion that the people composing pretty well every group would come under one of these three classifications. At least, I would say within my limited observation.

There is the person in almost every group, large or small, who is always indulging in wishful thinking—trying to figure out some way of having what is desirable without helping to bring it about. Such people usually impress you as very unhappy. I wouldn't go as far as Edward Young, the 18th century poet, who wrote: "Wishing, of all employments, is the worst." I would more nearly agree with George Crabbe, who wrote:

"In idle wishes fools supinely stay;
Be there a will, and wisdom finds a way."

And as to the jawbones, perhaps the less we say about the people who criticize everybody and everything, the better for us and for them. One of the subtlest temptations I know is the temptation to turn on the critic and drop down to the level of "dog eat dog." Ever read James Thomas Fields' "The Owl-Critic"? Here is a line or two of that searching poem.

"Just then, with a wink and a sly normal lurch,
The owl very gravely got down from his perch,
Walked around, and regarded his fault-finding critic
(Who thought he was stuffed)
With a glance analytic.
'I'm an owl; you're another. Sir Critic, good day.'
And the barber kept on shaving."

But whether in the home, the school, the business organization, the club, the church, the lodge, or what not, it is the backbone type that saves the day and accounts for most of the progress and happiness in this world. There you have the person who, in the face of wishful thinking and carping criticism, goes along quietly and bravely under the load.

They are the folks who know the joy of work well done, of dreams come true. They are the folks who enjoy life. They enjoy a good joke, even when it turns upon them. They have no axes to grind, except when they are preparing themselves for even harder work and tougher trees. They are the folks who listen respectfully to the wishbones and the jawbones, heeding any worthwhile word, and paying no attention to the rest of their idle, foolish words.

Judge Wood Will Discuss Pardons' Effect

To Speak at Joint Meeting of Atlanta Zone Lions.

Judge Jesse Wood, of the Fulton county criminal court, will speak in "The Effect of Pardons and Paroles of Criminals on the Community" at 7 o'clock tonight at the joint meeting of the Lions' clubs in the Atlanta zone in the Bass Junior High school auditorium. Eugene Sanders will act as toastmaster and the Lions' club of Little Five Points, Earl Haddock, president, will have charge of the program. W. J. Scott, principal of Bass, is program chairman. The movie, "Lions in Action," showing the community projects of the sponsor club, will be shown.

The meeting is planned to bring together the six clubs in the zone, and honor guests will be members of the three clubs: East Point, West End and Chamblee Lions' clubs. Atlanta and Decatur Lions' clubs are the other clubs in the zone.

The new district governor, Harry Cooper, of the Atlanta club, will make attendance awards and wives and dates of the members also will be honored at the 'Ladies' Night' meeting.

A machine for testing abrasive qualities of dental powders and creams has been devised.

Film Offerings Sprinkled With Music, Chills

Cartoon Festival, Biographical Drama Round Out Bill.

Openings at the picture theaters today are:

Looks like quite a sprinkling of mystery and music.

Loew's

Judy Garland, the first minstrel girl of the screen, arrives at Loew's today in "Little Nellie Kelly," a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production.

"Little Nellie Kelly" gives vivacious Miss Garland her first solo starring picture and her first grown-up celluloid romance, this with Douglas McPhail, the young tenor who was first featured in "Babes in Arms."

The little girl with the big voice vocalizes "Danny Boy" and other favorite Irish ballads in "Little Nellie Kelly," as well as several new numbers. She dances with George Murphy who plays her father in the picture. With Murphy and McPhail, Charles Winninger heads the supporting cast.

The film has its principal locale on the sidewalks of New York, with the action swinging from a typical middle-class home to a penthouse palace. "Little Nellie Kelly" was based on George M. Cohen's Broadway stage success.

Fox

Kay Kyser, in his second film, already has won great praise from critics for the improvement of his acting. In "You'll Find Out," the Fox actor offers Kay in the film industry's first attempt at making a musical out of a mystery and the leading lady, who almost gets killed, is little Helen Parrish, from Columbus, Ga.

Kay and his band accept an engagement to play for the 21st birthday dance of Miss Parrish, with whom Kay's business manager is in love. It seems there is a force working to kill Miss Parrish and thereby obtain the inheritance money left her by her father.

Strange things begin happening in a scene promoted by the three horror men of the screen—Peter Lorre, Boris Karloff, and Bela Lugosi. Comedy predominates throughout, and mystery and Ish Kabibble leads in the laughs. Those who've wanted to see the Kyser aggregation during a college night broadcast can see it in the picture.

Paramount

Miriam Hopkins takes a role from real life adventures of a great actress, Leslie Carter, in the Warner Brothers' film, "The Lady With Red Hair," which opens at the Paramount theater today.

In her day of the theater, Leslie Carter was the toast of the nation—a nation whose styles and tempo she set with her flaming red hair, one of the first of the "red hot mammas." It was Leslie Carter's fight to win custody of her son in a courtroom battle of the century that was the first of the big name divorce scandals.

Playing the part of the man who put Leslie Carter on top of the theatrical world and dropped her when she married against his will is Claude Rains as David Belasco. Certain liberties have been taken with real life to make the motion picture story.

Capitol

The plight of a young newspaperman, whose testimony has sent an innocent man to the death-cell, when he finds himself the victim of a similar situation and in danger of going himself to the electric chair, is thrillingly told in the new screen dramatic offering, "Stranger on the Third Floor," which opens a three-day engagement at the Capitol theater today.

Retribution, and the problems of circumstantial evidence, are woven into this unique picture, with Peter Lorre heading the distinguished cast. John McGuire plays the part of a young reporter, who by his evidence, unwillingly helps to convict an innocent man of murder.

The reporter worries over his action, and that night he meets a sinister-looking stranger at his rooming house and chases him away. During the night, he dreams that a fellow lodger, with whom he has had trouble in the past, has been killed, and he sees himself tried, convicted, and sent to the chair for the crime.

Cameo

Roy Rogers' outdoor drama of stagecoach raids in "Young Bill Hickok," gets its first showing at the Cameo theater tomorrow and Saturday.

Others in the cast are George "Gabby" Hayes and Jacqueline Well. The Cameo also will show another feature called "Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me," starring Tom Brown and Constance Moore.

Drinking Bill Of U. S. Shown By W. C. T. U.

Nation's Tipplers Have Taken 40 Billion 'Shots' Since Repeal.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(UP)—The Women's Christian Temperance Union totaled its scoresheet tonight on the nation's drinking bill since repeal of prohibition seven years ago and announced with concern that imbibers have consumed some 40,000,000,000 "shots" of various liquors at a cost of $21,503,048,000.

This, the W. C. T. U. said, was at the expense of food, clothing, housing and attendance at movies. The union issued its warning on the eve of repeal's seventh anniversary.

A breakdown of the seven-year score sheet revealed that drinkers did away with some 9,565,920 barrels of 100-proof alcohol, 270,000,000 barrels of beer and 450,000,000 gallons of wine.

Water Rates Reduction To Save $294,985

LeCraw Admits Opposition to Cuts Has Developed

Because the 30 per cent cut in water rates will not become effective until March 1, the 1941 savings will be only $294,985.50 for the remaining 10 months of the year, it was disclosed yesterday.

Schools, however, get 30 per cent of water receipts and this will amount to a reduction of $89,495.65 for 1941, leaving $205,489.85 which must be absorbed by the city treasury. Opposition, Mayor-elect LeCraw admitted, has developed to the projected water cut, and friends of the school system have contended a slash of nearly $90,000 in school receipts for 1941 will cripple the department. LeCraw, however, insists that the people supported his proposed water bill cut and he proposes to make it effective, or to tell the citizens of Atlanta why we cannot do so.

Water Receipts

Records of the water department show that receipts from that source for 1939 were $2,519,008.59 as compared to $2,456,413.43 for the first 11 months of the present year. B. Graham West, city comptroller, estimates that December receipts will add another $216,000 to 1940 receipts, pushing the year's total $145,404.84 above 1939.

Receipts for 1940 are "abnormal" because of the freeze last January, and two drought periods during the spring and fall, it was said. City receipts were increased about $48,000 from the freeze alone.

When the rate cut goes into effect, city users will get only a 30-cubic foot used, but, because those living outside the municipal limits pay a double water bill, their reduction will be 60 cents for the first 800 feet.

This means that the 74,834 users living in Atlanta will get reductions amounting to $22,450.20 a month, while the 10,081 consumers residing outside the city will save $6,048.60 a month, White said.

Councilman John A. White issued a statement of incoming administration plans for the municipal government in which he urged economy.

The statement follows: "I have conferred with Mayor-elect Roy LeCraw, and it is our recommendation that, in order to readjust the finances of the city in a feather-edged way, to adopt a sound budget for 1941, to keep the city on a cash basis without borrowing any money and at the same time maintaining the present salary schedule without impairing the services, the water-rate reduction shall become effective as of March 1, 1941.

"This is necessary to serve the best interests of the city and its citizens, since everyone knows, when his income is reduced, readjustments must come slowly if reaction is to be avoided.

"However, the new administration must immediately observe the 'slow-down' signal if it is to carry forward in a sound, businesslike manner. When the curtain falls on the year 1940, it will be found that this has been the biggest spending year in the history of Atlanta.

"An additional 68 new employees were added to the pay roll at a cost of $108,492.72, which, together with salary increases totaling $23,682.08, cost the municipality $132,174.80 for the year. These commitments will be added to our 1941 pay roll.

"Car Allowance.

"Allowances for privately owned automobiles during the year 1940 totaled $37,548, which is an alarming fact. However, this is not permanent and can be reduced. (LeCraw already has intimated he proposes to cut auto allowances for department heads and city workers approximately 25 per cent and even eliminate some of them.)

The figures on total appropriations for the year will not be available until about January 5, but when the public sees them it, too, will be alarmed.

"All salary cuts made during depression years were restored in January, 1937, the year all tax increases went into effect, and since that time the cost of government has increased annually from the mayor's department down.

"For instance, cost of operating the mayor's department increased over 40 per cent since January 1, 1937, and each department from there on down shows similar increases. Common sense tells us that such as this cannot continue unless the people are forced to submit to additional taxes.

"The people of Atlanta are entitled to tax relief since they cooperated in the last four years and their ad valorem taxes were increased, sanitary rates were doubled and tripled and their water rates were bled in the rehabilitation of the government."

Budget Group Finishes Study Of '41 Receipts

City Figure Is Expected To Be Around $10,300,000.

The retiring city budget commission yesterday completed studies of 1941 receipts, and although compilations are not yet complete, it is expected the figure is around $10,300,000.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, and budget committee member, said 1941 anticipations are "conservative and reasonable," adding "we made about the same anticipations we would have made if no change were slated in the city administration."

Mayor Hartsfield surrenders the mayor's chair to Mayor-elect LeCraw January 6.

City Comptroller B. Graham West said he had not totaled the anticipations, but will do so as soon as possible.

Commission members spent about three hours going over anticipated receipts item by item.

The tentative sheet made no provision for the 30 per cent water rate reduction, a pledge of the LeCraw administration, but will be turned over intact for consideration of the new budget group, which will take office with LeCraw.

A $300,000 reserve fund was set up in compliance with next year's budgetary requirements.

'Escape' To Open At Rhodes Today

"Escape," the most recent Robert Taylor and Norma Shearer film, moves today to the Rhodes theater for another week's showing.

The film deals with the escape of a famed German actress from a German concentration camp, with the aid of an American-born countess, a Nazi doctor who remembered her from the stage, her son, and an old family servant. The cast includes Conrad Veidt, Nazimova, Felix Bressart, Albert Basserman and Philip Dorn.

Tourist Train Jumps Track Near Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 4.—(AP) The Southern States Special, tourist train of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, designated as No. 107, was derailed about 6 o'clock this morning two and a half miles north of central junction here. The only injury was received by a cook, who was slightly hurt.

Seven cars were derailed and none of the Florida-bound passengers were hurt. The passengers were given breakfast at Savannah and put on a special train, which departed for Jacksonville at 11 o'clock. Rail officials attributed the accident to a broken

State Labor Officials Plan Meeting Here

Problems of Migratory Workers at Defense Projects Subject

Representatives from Georgia and four other southern states will meet in Atlanta December 17 and 18 to discuss problems caused by migratory workers, it was disclosed yesterday.

Parks Glover, chairman of the Florida industrial commission, who made the announcement of the meeting, said the influx of migratory workers attracted by defense projects had created "acute situations in many states."

Glover, a sponsor of the conference, will represent Florida, it was said. Other sponsors include Ben T. Huiet, Georgia commissioner of labor; Forrest H. Shuford, North Carolina commissioner of labor; W. Rhett Harley, South Carolina commissioner of labor; and John D. Petree, director of the Alabama department of industrial relations.

These workers are unable to participate under state and federal social security benefits, Smith said, because of the various residence laws. They travel from state to state and it is impossible to figure their total earnings and therefore they are not eligible for unemployment compensation and old-age pensions, he said.

Another problem to be discussed, Smith said, is that of "rackets" operated by labor contractors. The contractors sign up workers for special jobs, charge them fees for transportation from place to place, collect salaries and pay the workers only a part of the earnings.

Purpose of the meeting, Smith said, is to find a solution for these problems and to discuss state and federal legislation to provide aid. Plans to put workers under the social security and wage-and-hour laws also will be discussed.

Wife's Skull Is Crushed, Husband Shoots Himself

Sparta, Ga., Dec. 4.—County Policeman R. D. Smith reported Orlando Bass, a farmer, fired a gunshot charge into his own side, apparently in a suicidal attempt, after crushing his wife's head with an ax at their home near Mayfield yesterday.

The woman was brought to a local physician. Both wife and husband were reported in critical condition today.

The officer said no arrest had been made, pending the outcome of Bass' injuries.

LaGrange Construction Shows November Gain

Sparta, Ga., Dec. 4.—November construction in LaGrange topped that of the same month last year by $3,490. The 1940 November figure was $24,565, compared with the $21,175 for the same month in 1939.

The largest single November permit was for construction of a terminal and office building for a transportation company. The building will cost an approximate $10,000.

$100 Watch Lost Here By Baseball Delegate

Loss of a watch valued at $100 was reported to police yesterday by C. W. (Red) Cronin, manager of the Cincinnati Reds baseball park.

H. H. Bonner Is Elected Lavonia Chief Executive

LAVONIA, Ga., Dec. 4.—H. H. Bonner today defeated T. E. Purcell in a race for mayor of Lavonia. Bonner polled 173 votes, Purcell 148.

In the race for council, J. R. Beasley, with 185 votes, and Fred Lee, with 170, won the two seats. O. D. Cannon Jr. polled 138 and Earl Dowis received 136.

3 Train Cars Leave Tracks; Reds Tried To Intimidate Him

Mishap at Decatur and Moore Delays Schedule Hour.

Three passenger cars of the Georgia railroad's overnight train No. 4 from Atlanta to Charleston, left the track and were leaning at a 30-degree angle, still coupled to the remainder of the 10-car train, about 8:25 o'clock last night at the Decatur and Moore streets crossing.

No passengers were hurt. The cars were the sixth, seventh and eighth, two days coaches and the first Pullman car. The cars left on the track were cut out and a new train made up which left the yards about an hour later.

The conductor of the train was J. V. Jones and the Engineer C. C. McGinty.

Cause of the accident was unknown last night, but trainmen said it seemed to have been the result of a broken switch.

Georgia 4-H Boy Gets Aberdeen-Angus Heifer

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Directors of the International Livestock Exposition presented three registered heifers today to a trio of 4-H Club youths considered outstanding boys in their communities.

Thomas E. Wilson turned over a shorthorn to Herbert Rees, 15, of Pleasantville, Iowa. Rees showed the reserve junior grand champion steer, a shorthorn, this year.

An Aberdeen-Angus heifer was donated by Jess Andrew, a West Point, Ind., breeder, to Clem Aires, 15, of Silver Creek, Ga.

C. R. Musser, of Muscatine, Iowa, presented a Hereford to Mel Miller, 20, of Clarksville, Tenn.

Charges Communists Are Using Colleges as 'Sounding Boards.'

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The president of one of the nation's largest colleges testified at a public hearing today that the Communist party "deliberately uses" colleges in New York city as "sounding boards" for its activities.

Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, 39-year-old head of Brooklyn College—an institution of 14,000 students—told a joint legislative committee investigating subversive activities in the schools that an organized effort was made "to intimidate me—a most unsuccessful one, but certainly an organized one."

As the hearing adjourned until next month to allow for further investigation, the committee authorized its counsel to start contempt proceedings against 25 members or former members of the school system, who allegedly refused to testify in private hearings before the committee.

By "fortifying" white flour with vitamin B-1 and adding calcium salt, the British government aims to give white bread some of the nutritive qualities of whole meal.

SAYS

Lucy Crockett's New Book Is Story of U. S. Army Mule

• • • "CAPTAIN" IS THE STORY of a United States army mule. And "Captain," which is just off the press, will be of especial interest to Atlantans, for it was written, as well as illustrated, by Lucy Herndon Crockett, who now lives in New York. Lucy, you know, resided at Fort McPherson for a number of years while her father, Colonel Carey Crockett, was detailed here. During her stay in Atlanta, Lucy made many friends among civilian circles and enjoyed wide popularity.

When her parents were transferred to a post in the east, Lucy went to New York, where she was destined to embark upon a thrilling literary career. "Captain," her third book, has just been published by Henry Holt & Co., and the youthful and gifted author has treated her subject, the army mule, in an interesting and entertaining manner.

The story is told by Captain, and the narrative begins when he is young, frisky and black, and has just joined the army. He tells his life story just as one would expect, giving a mule's-eye picture of the army and the men who fought through many campaigns. Captain went to campaigns in China, the Philippines, and France, and his story is fascinating, unique, interesting and completely authentic in background.

Lucy comes by her knowledge of military mules honestly, for she has lived in army posts in many sections of this country and abroad. At one time her father was on the staff of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt Jr., when the latter was governor general of the Philippines, and it was there that Lucy acquired the background for her first two books, the scenes of which were laid in the islands.

The first, which came out in the spring of 1939, was "Lucio and His Nuong," the story of a little Filipino boy who was not daunted by the fiercest and most sullen water buffalo in his village. This book established Lucy's reputation as a most original illustrator and a born storyteller. In 1940 she published a second book, "That Mario," which told the adventures of Lucio's older brother on his trip to the city of Manila. It was awarded the New York Herald Tribune's spring festival prize in the division for younger readers and has been a general favorite since.

• • • ONE OF the most beautiful floral tributes sent Mary Jo Brownlee for her debut last evening was an exquisite old-fashioned bouquet which was the gift of Mrs. James A. Farley, of New York. Very large and round in shape, the bouquet was formed against a background of pale blue tulle, and consisted of forget-me-nots, white carnations and sweetheart roses. Ribbons of tulle extended a yard in length and were caught with small clusters of forget-me-nots.

• • • WHEN Anne Creekmore, of Athens, became the bride of Gordon Jones back in October, she looked so lovely, her ivory white tulle gown was so becoming, and her orchid bouquet was so perfect that Gordon's mother, Mrs. Harrison Jones, wanted to preserve the picture in toto. Of course Anne would always keep and cherish her wedding gown, but there was the question of the bouquet. What could be done about that?

Mrs. Jones called her florist. Yes, it could be preserved, he said. Accordingly, the dainty phalaenopsis orchids, which comprised the bouquet, were sent to him the day after the wedding. After being cut from their stems they were pressed under glass. And when they were completely dry, they were retouched with water colors to make them look fresh again. The small purple dots, for instance, were restored to the delicate petals with such clear color that they were almost lifelike.

As a final step in the process, the orchids were arranged in bouquet fashion against a background of orchid velvet. Even the ribbon with which the flowers were originally tied formed a bow to further carry out the idea. Then the whole was framed in a deep, old-fashioned frame of white and gold.

The bouquet now forms a charming memento of the wedding, as well as being preserved for posterity.

• • • A TRIO of attractive visitors will be present on December 18 when Jeanette Estes, lovely debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Grady Estes, makes her formal bow to society at a supper-dance at the Driving Club. The trio includes Betty Lee Jones, of Leland, Miss.; Betty Schrack, of Milwaukee, Wis.; and Grace Cralle, of Tampa, Fla., who were classmates of the popular bud at National Park Seminary in the nation's capital, all of whom will arrive by plane. Incidentally, Jeanette will resume her studies at National Park at the close of the debut season, her college career having been interrupted long enough for her debut.

Additional parties planned for Jeanette include that at which Mr. and Mrs. L. C. McKinney will entertain at the cocktail hour on Christmas Eve, with Margaret Winslow, Jean Pentecost and Barbara Indell sharing honors.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harris will entertain for the attractive bud on December 26 at their Clifton road residence. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Callaway, of LaGrange, will also honor Jeanette during the Yuletide, the date of this party to be announced later.

North Fulton Pageant. North Fulton high school will give a Christmas pageant December 19 at 8 o'clock. Father's night will be observed.

Parties Are Given For Debutantes

An elaborate affair of yesterday was the tea at which Mrs. A. F. Akers was hostess at her home on Stovall boulevard complimenting Miss Emmelyn Carter, lovely member of the Debutante Club.

Receiving with the hostess and honor guest were the latter's mother, Mrs. Benjamin T. Carter, and Mrs. Julian Longley, of Dalton.

Assisting in entertaining were Mesdames Hillyer Rudisill, Davis Gammage, Ridley Nichol, Dan Bodin, C. D. LeBey. Misses Julia Carter and Florence Akers received cards at the door.

Ivy bowls filled with pink flowers and rich greenery graced either end of the mantle in the living room. In the dining room a handsome Wedgwood bowl containing pyrocanthus berries and evergreens flanked by silver candelabra holding burning ivory tapers decorated the sideboard. The tea table was overlaid with an ecru lace cloth and centered with a silver bowl containing an arrangement of fruit, evergreens, and pyrocanthus berries.

Another affair given for members of the debutante coterie yesterday was the luncheon at which Mrs. Hinton Longino entertained at her home on Habersham road in honor of Miss Elsa McCall and Miss Mary Lib Beers.

Luncheon was served buffet style from a beautifully appointed table graced in the center with an arrangement of yellow roses and white chrysanthemums. Invited to meet the honor guests were Misses Emmelyn Carter, Martha Merritt, Helen and Gladys Randall, Jean Pentecost, Evelyn Harrison, Margaret Winslow, Helen McDuffie, Mrs. Howard McCall Jr., Mrs. Gilbert Beers, and Mrs. Joseph Winslow.

Chaperones will be Dr. and Mrs. J. Sam Guy and Dr. and Mrs. Robert C. Rhodes.

Miss Radford Heads Sorority.

Miss Betty Jean Radford was elected president of the Sigma Theta chapter of the Sigma Tau Delta sorority at the recent meeting. Others elected were Misses Barbara Roberts, vice president; Dawn Havis, secretary; Nell Taylor, treasurer; Elizabeth Young, scribe; and Dorothy Williamson, monitor. Members of the sorority entertain at a bowling party Friday evening for the pledges.

Miss Logan, Mr. Burroughs Will Marry on December 23

At a quiet ceremony taking place on the afternoon of December 23, Miss Martha Anne Logan, lovely daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Logan, will become the bride of Stiles Burroughs Jr. in the Winship Chapel of the First Presbyterian church. Dr. William V. Gardner will perform the marriage at 4:30 o'clock. Dr. Charles Sheldon, organist, will present a musical program.

Miss Ruth Middlebrooks will be her cousin's maid of honor and only attendant. Dr. Logan will give his daughter in marriage. Sidney Burroughs will act as best man for his brother.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Grover Middlebrooks will entertain at a reception at their home on West Andrews drive for the wedding personnel and a few close friends of the bridal couple. Many social affairs have been planned in honor of Miss Logan.

MISS MARY JO BROWNLEE.

Miss Brownlee Makes Debut At Ball Held on Her Birthday

Several hundred socialites assembled at the Piedmont Driving Club last evening for the brilliant supper-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. William M. Brownlee formally introduced to society their lovely debutante daughter, Miss Mary Jo Brownlee.

A color motif of frosty white and winter green predominated in the decorations throughout the club. The date of the party having also marked the birthday of the popular honor guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee and Miss Brownlee received their guests standing at the right of the ballroom before a background of palms and Australian tree fern. Centering the backdrop was a white satin disc garlanded with delicate asparagus fern to which were pinned the myriads of gift orchids sent the bud, who is vice president of the Debutante Club. Flanking the receiving line were stately white columns holding Grecian urns of white chrysanthemums.

Miss Brownlee's winsome brunet beauty was enhanced by her bouffant gown of white heathcoat net, the bodice of which was trimmed with applied bows of net. The bow motif being repeated in silver sequins on the sleeves. Features of the dainty gown were a heart-shaped neckline and a full skirt trimmed with sequin bows and appliqued bows of net. The debutante carried an unusual bouquet mounted on a French bow of American Beauty velvet ribbon. The floral cluster was formed of rare American Beauty orchids.

Miss Garland, Mr. Johnson To Wed at Church Dec. 28

Miss Dorothy Garland and her fiancé, Daniel William Johnson, have selected the historic old Rock Spring Presbyterian church as the scene for their marriage, which will be a social event of interest on December 28. The church was founded many years ago by Mr. Johnson's great-great-grandfather, the late Daniel Johnson, and it is of particular interest that it was chosen for the Yuletide ceremony. Rev. H. E. Russell, the pastor of the church, will officiate at 11:30 o'clock in the morning. A musical program will be presented by Roy Liddell, organist.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her uncle, Walter Jernigan, of Asheville, N. C. A cousin of the bride-to-be, Miss Barbara Thrower, will be maid of honor, while Miss Jean Harris Johnson, sister of the groom-elect, will be bridesmaid. Little Miss Mary Lou Grabbe is to be junior bridesmaid.

Charles Wade Johnson will be his brother's best man and Roy C. Kinne will be groomsman. Daniel Matthews, young cousin of the groom-elect, will be junior groomsman. Ushers include William C. Lee Jr., Allen A. Alexander, Ernest A. Neely and Hugh B. Bowden.

The first affair to honor Miss Garland was an announcement party given by Mrs. W. C. Matthews at her home on Oakdale road. Mrs. Matthews, an aunt of the groom-elect, was assisted in the entertaining by Mrs. Elsie Johnson and Miss Jean Harris Johnson. Silver candelabra and vases with red and green candles and flowers formed the decorations.

Other parties for this couple have been planned by Misses Barbara Thrower, Betty Fuller, Ruth Apperson, Jean Harris Johnson and Mrs. George Wagon. The details of these entertainments will be announced later, as will the plans for the rehearsal party at which Mrs. Elsie Johnson and Mrs. William C. Matthews will entertain, and the tea which Mrs. Newton E. Garland will give for her daughter.

Lambda Sigma Frat Plans Wiener Roast.

Miss Quillian, Mr. Hinton Marry at Home Ceremony

Interest centers in the announcement made today by Dr. and Mrs. W. Earl Quillian of the marriage of their niece, Miss Rose Quillian, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Garnett Quillian, to John Samuel Hinton, which was solemnized last Sunday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Quillian on Ponce de Leon avenue. Dr. Edward G. Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist church, performed the ceremony and a program of music was presented by Mrs. Foster Spain, organist.

The improvised altar in the living room was banked with palms and ferns interspersed with seven-branched candelabra holding burning white tapers. Floor baskets filled with white chrysanthemums and lilies completed the decorations.

Mrs. Charles Harvey Johnston, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was gowned in ceil blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Cadet Billy Quillian, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer. The lovely blond bride entered with her uncle, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Charles Harvey Johnston, who served as best man. The bride was gowned in an exquisite model of white taffeta and her veil of illusion was caught to her head with clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white flowers.

After the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Quillian entertained at a reception honoring the wedding guests.

Mrs. Quillian received her guests wearing a model of black chiffon and velvet and a shoulder spray of white carnations. Mrs. Garnett Quillian, mother of the bride, wore powder blue crepe and lace. Her flowers were pink roses.

Mrs. Lois Hinton chose for her son's wedding a gown of black velvet. A shoulder spray of pink roses completed her costume.

The bride's table was overlaid with a cream lace cover and centered with a crystal tree surrounded with smilax and white roses. Crystal candlesticks holding burning white tapers completed the table appointments.

Miss Lucille Vincent kept the bride's book and assisting in entertaining were Mesdames E. S. Lindbergh, Arthur Dunning, Ernest Littleton, Misses Elizabeth Willis, Rosetta Ebrite, Elizabeth Moffett, Elizabeth Fraser, Mary Rhodes and Martha Zoll.

East Lake Club Announces Officers.

The East Lake Garden Club met recently with Mrs. L. D. Shearin, Mrs. Edwin L. Booth, president, presiding. Charles Hudson talked on "Shrubbery." New officers for the coming year were elected, including: President, Mrs. W. W. Cole; first vice president, Mrs. J. M. Vickery; second vice president, Mrs. J. R. Pattillo; recording secretary, Mrs. W. E. Franklin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. C. Akers; treasurer, Mrs. Thomas B. Robertson.

Chairman of Garden Center announced that the club received 91 points on an arrangement of chrysanthemums in gourd designed by Mrs. W. P. Branch in October. On December 18 Mrs. J. J. Nicholson will give a tea for members of the East Lake Garden Club at the East Lake Country Club at 3 o'clock.

Luncheon was served by Mrs. Shearin and her co-hostesses, Mesdames L. S. Kelley and Edwin L. Booth.

Reuben Garland Jr. Honors C. A. R.

Unusual table decorations depicting the landing of the Pilgrims and the first American Thanksgiving featured the party given by Reuben Garland Jr. November 29 for the Dolly Madison chapter, C. A. R., at the home of his parents on Peachtree road. The party marked the initial fall meeting of the society and was attended by 13 members.

Mrs. Reuben Garland Sr. and Mrs. Pat Gillen, chairman of the group, were assisted in the program presentation by Betty Spiker, president. Mrs. Asa G. DeLoach, relative chairman from the Atlanta chapter, D. A. R., to the Dolly Madison chapter, began the discussion of historical events connected with the first Thanksgiving in the New World. The group selected the American Indian and Sam Houston as their topics of study for the December meeting. Mrs. Garland was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Miss Mary T. Moon.

Flower Study Club.

Flower Study Club met recently at the home of Mrs. James C. Shelor on Pine Valley road. Christmas decorations were used in the living room. The tea table carried out the patriotic theme with red, white and blue gift boxes used as the center decoration. Club members brought Christmas decorations for mantel and front door.

The president, Mrs. J. M. Monfort, presided. Mrs. Granger Hansell gave an interesting talk on Christmas decorations. Two new members present were Mrs. Ed Castleton and Mrs. C. W. Best.

Mr., Mrs. McDargh Will Be Hosts

Among the prominent visitors planning to spend Christmas in Atlanta is a family group who will arrive December 21 to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McDargh at their home on Camden road. The group includes Mr. McDargh's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McDargh Sr., of Chicago, Ill.; his brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McDargh, of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. McDargh's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones, of Paris, Ill.

The sextet will form the inspiration for a series of delightful informal affairs during their visit, the highlight of which will be the family dinner at which their hosts will entertain on Christmas Day. The visitors will remain in the city until after the New Year, when they will leave for Florida to spend the remainder of the winter. After a stay in Miami, Mr. and Mrs. Jones will go to California.

Euzelian Class Holds Banquet.

The Euzelian Class of the Baptist Tabernacle held its annual banquet recently.

The table was adorned with crystal candleholders and crystal bowls filled with purple and gold pompon chrysanthemums.

A program was rendered with Mrs. Ona Garner presiding as follows: Invocation by Dr. A. B. Mott, the pastor; greetings by Miss Nellie Biggers; special feature, "The Ozark Twins," by Ona and Mona Christie; reading by Miss Sue Reese; musical numbers by Mrs. Clara Yates and the "Acoustic Faith," Mesdames Katherine Jones, Evelyn Browder, Katherine Armstrong, Grace Bradley and Clara Yates.

The committee for the banquet included Misses Nellie Biggers, chairman; Sara Thompson, Louise Biggers, Nellie and Ruth Howard, Mesdames Ona Garner, Helen Allen and Henrietta Vaughn.

Huguenot Chapter Selects Name at Recent Meeting

The Peter and Anthony Chapter of the Huguenot Society of the Founders of Manakin was the guest chapter of Miss Juanita Chisholm, the president, at its recent meeting held at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

The main feature was the selection of a name for the chapter, "Peter and Anthony" being selected. This name was borne by one of the ships which brought the Huguenot refugees to Manakintowne. The ancestors of most of the chapter members came to Virginia on this ship.

Mrs. S. F. Knowles, historian, talked, as did Mrs. Bryan Wells Collier, organizing state president, and Mrs. Clarence Decker Tebo. Miss Chisholm spoke of the first church built by the refugees, of the quaint houses of that time and of the land recently purchased by the society and converted into a national Huguenot park facing on

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Richards are shown cutting the wedding cake at the reception following their recent marriage in New York. The bride is the former Miss Mary Frances Levine, of Atlanta. She is the daughter of Mrs. Gus Levine and the late Mr. Levine, of Tampa.

Welfare Department To Sponsor Sale.

The Welfare Department of the Fifth District Federation of Women's Clubs will sponsor a sale at Davison's of articles made by the blind during the week of December 9 to 14. Mrs. Charles S. Smith is chairman of the welfare department.

Mrs. Charles English has been appointed to have charge of the sale, due to the illness of Mrs. C. D. Carter, chairman of blind for the district. The sale will be held from 11 to 3 o'clock with chairmen of the blind and welfare department from the clubs in attendance.

Greer Garson Refuses To Let Studio Give Her Any Publicity

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 4.—If Fred Astaire will take my advice—which, of course, he won't—he will rush right back into the arms of Ginger Rogers and co-star with her in his next picture. Having just seen Fred's teaming with Paulette Goddard (in "Second Chorus") and remembering his recent job with Eleanor Powell, I have come to the conclusion that Ginger Rogers is the only suitable dancing partner for Fred—in films anyway. She is the perfect foil for him. They each supply what the other lacks. Eleanor Powell is a better dancer than Ginger. And there is nothing wrong with Paulette's hoofing, but put either of them with Fred, and as far as I'm concerned, the result is far from good.

Greer Garson is being difficult. She says she wants no personal publicity and will please concentrate on her picture work only. Which makes it hard for the boys to publicize her because her ratio of pictures is two every three years. . . . Peter Lorre, emoting in "The Face Behind the Mask," lunches in makeup at a cafe next to his studio. Two small children stop at his table, giggle, then rush back to their mother and ask, "Mama, is it still Halloween?"

Hedy Lamarr's ex-husband, Gene Markey, and Myrna Loy's ditto, Arthur Hornblow, spent the week end together at the B-Bar-H ranch. I'll bet they talked about "women and what is wrong with them." . . . French Charles Boyer and English Mrs. Boyer will soon take out their first papers for American citizenship. . . . Margaret Sullivan will abandon picture making for one year after her baby arrives. She wants a boy. . . . Rita Hayworth's "strawberry blond" hair appears like a bad henna to me.

Jimmy Stewart seems thinner than usual in the pajamas he wears for the final scene in "Come Live With Me." His bedroom is divided from Hedy Lamarr's by a thin partition that is open at the top. For the scene, he has to stand on his bed, peep over the top, and talk to Hedy, who plays his wife. Jimmy is too tall for such goings on. "I'll have to cut the legs (Jimmy looks startled) of the bed," says Director Clarence Brown.

Virginia Grey and Richard Arlen will be married in the spring. . . . The Fred MacMurrys have adopted a girl. . . . Mickey Rooney wanted a date with Cobina Wright, junior, but Robert Stack put him off effectively by explaining that Cobina was five feet, nine inches tall. . . .

Wayne Morris and Bubbles Schinas must have departed from their honeymoon cottage in an hurry. They left behind them clothes of table runners, ash trays and towels on which are intertwined the names "Bubbles" and "Wayne." These are now being used by Franchot Tone and Burgess Meredith. . . . Judy Garland was telling Deanna Durbin how her hat was pulled from her head and the buttons torn from her dress during a recent personal appearance tour. "There is only one thing to do," replied Deanna. "Wear a hat you hate, and a dress with a zipper from top to bottom." But that might be worse. . . . Robert Preston's screen test with his wife is rather funny. For the scene, they are quarreling, quarreled and talked of a divorce. The test was shot immediately after their elopement! . . . Don Ameche's face is not adapted to wearing a monocle. So for a scene in "Road to Die," a monocle was stuck on to Don's face with spirit gum. When the time came for it to drop off, it remained stuck. When it was finally removed, some of Ameche's face went with it. Ah, me! How they suffer for their art!

Sailor Frock and Calot For Tots

By Lillian Mae.

Sailing, sailing, right into the land of fashion—goes this gay frock! For sailor-dresses are a high-ranking favorite with kiddies, and Pattern 4530 is one of the season's most engaging versions of this mode. There are pleats to the fore and pleats to the left aft, stitched to the waistline to give a trim bodice fitting and released below for generous skirt fullness. The sailor collar, which may match or cheerily contrast, is a true nautical touch; so are the optional braid trim and the tie. You may choose between short or long and full sleeves. The cute calot cap and bloomers or panties are included. Let the Sewing Instructor steer your course to a speedy finish!

Pattern 4530 is cut in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, long sleeve dress, takes 1-3/4 yards 54-inch fabric; short sleeve dress, 2-3/8 yards 35-inch fabric.

This new envelope handbag with a top handle shows the use of a new smooth leather borrowed from the cowboy. Under the flap is a safety pocket, made safer with a zipper, and the two flat discs attached as zipper pulls can be initialed. This cowhide in natural color is currently used in tailored handbags, belts and jewelry. For further information about the bag, call Winifred Ware at Wa. 6565.

It's Fun To Paint Pictures

So appealing is this picture on glass called "A Child's Prayer!" And you can so easily paint it yourself—in its full size, 9 by 12 inches—to keep or to give away as a Christmas gift. . . . All the colors you need in your painting can be mixed from three inexpensive tubes of oils—red, blue and yellow—with a color chart to show how. Brown, for instance, is a mixture of all three colors.

To darken or lighten a color just add black or white household enamel. Dark brown is a mixture of black and brown, light brown is brown and white. Both these shades you'll use in the colorful painting, "A Child's Prayer." . . . Paint the bed dark brown, the old-fashioned quilt in a bouquet of bright shades. The rug is mostly dark blue, the floor is light brown, the wallpaper flowers are pink with green leaves. The little lot is yellow haired. The puppy is black and you may use either black or dark red for the lettering.

Then, when your painting is dry, slip a sheet of silver metallic paper behind the glass for a light sparkling background. Frame it and you have a picture to be proud of! . . . Send 15 cents in coins for our set of SIX PICTURES TO PAINT ON GLASS—SECOND SET, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of picture set.

If You Keep Disinfectants At Home, Be Sure They Are Harmless

By Dr. William Brady.

Too often the layman gauges the efficiency of an antiseptic, germicide or disinfectant by the pungency of its odor, and there are still a few medical practitioners who exploit this popular misconception by using iodoform or some equally noxious medication whenever possible. There is no legitimate excuse for using such stuff in any circumstance. Long ago Hare, famous teacher of therapeutics, pointed out that germs may grow in iodoform.

Phenol (carbolic acid) also has a characteristic odor and from long association the odor of phenol has acquired considerable power in the imagination of the layman. Carbolic was extensively employed in surgery and even in the operating room and the lying-in room up to the end of the last century. From that era date many of the popular "antiseptic" nostrums of the present time—straws containing phenol and having its impressive odor more or less hidden or disguised by aromatics of no remedial value other than keeping the s.m.c. guessing.

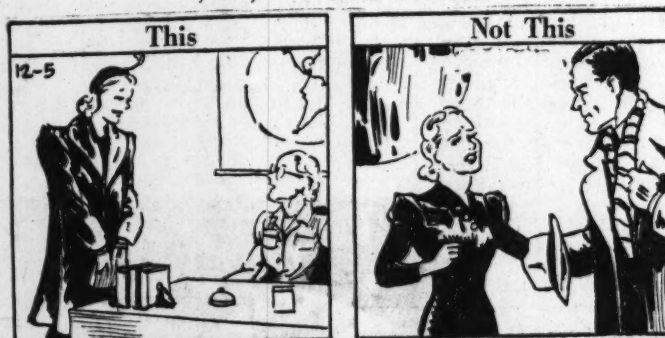

Phenol was selected, in the early part of the present century, as a standard for comparison of disinfectant power, so that the phenol coefficient of antiseptic represents the amount of phenol required to produce the same germicidal action as the antiseptic under test. If the antiseptic has a phenol coefficient of 4 it means that it would require four times as much phenol to produce the germicidal action produced by one part of the antiseptic, or in other words it is four times as "strongly germicidal" as phenol.

As a medical student I saw pure liquefied phenol poured into an abdominal wound when the nurse mistook the gauze covered bottle for a gauze covered bottle of peroxide solution. The patient died. As a young practitioner I saw a girl die because in a tantrum over some trivial argument with her mother she seized and swallowed pure liquefied phenol which her mother rashly kept in the house for use as a disinfectant. Then I realized that after all, even a doctor has no adequate excuse for using phenol as an antiseptic, germicide or disinfectant. I never told her so, but I have always thought that that mother was in some measure responsible for her daughter's death. I think any person or householder who keeps in the house carbolic acid, strychnine, morphine, arsenic, a revolver or other lethal poison or weapon, should be held to strict accountability for tragedies that may happen.

No antiseptic or disinfectant short of sterilization by boiling, dry heat or steam, is more efficient or safer than plain soap and water. Bathing or washing the skin surface, the wound, the implement, the material, the wall or floor or furniture with soapy water gives as much protection, in my opinion, as one can possibly get from the use of any other antiseptic or disinfectant in the modern pharmacopoeia.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "I noticed as I visited the school today that Mary made a constant bid for attention, just as she does at home. What do you think is the cause of this?"

Parents and teachers can help each other—if they think of the children's welfare instead of their own feelings.

Housewives Ask a Few Questions About Health

By Ida Jean Kain.

With food prices up again, Uncle Sam's nutritionists are kept busy answering the questions of housewives bent on planning the meals that afford the highest protection for the least money. The questions and answers are of such general interest that I have condensed this service of the "Market Basket" to give you the benefit of the same information.

For example, many a housewife wants to know: Is it true that oranges lose their vitamin C a few minutes after they are cut and squeezed for juice?

The answer is no! Fortunately orange juice does not lose its vitamin C for some time after it has been squeezed. But if you intend to keep the juice for any length of time, it should be placed in an air-tight container in the refrigerator. In this way there is very little loss of the vitamin C until the second day.

Then there is the question: Why is it that tomatoes are always near the top of any list of foods rich in vitamin C?

Here's the answer: It's because tomatoes are richer in C than most other vegetables. Moreover, the acid in the tomatoes protects the vitamin from destruction in the process of canning. Once a can of tomato juice is opened, however, treat it as you would freshly squeezed orange juice that is prepared in advance. Put it in an airtight container in the icebox.

Another good question is: Do canned vegetables which are cheaper in winter—furnish the same protection as fresh vegetables?

Commercially canned vegetables have about the same value as fresh vegetables after they are cooked. But the liquid from the canned vegetables must be used—it can be served with the vegetable, or utilized for soups, or stews or gravies. It is the liquid which contains the minerals and many of the vitamins and if these are thrown out, your family is cheated out of valuable health protection.

To make sure that the menus are high in vitamin C, some raw vegetables and fruits must be included in the daily menus—the cooked vegetables do not contain this important vitamin in sufficient quantities.

Here's a complaint that will strike a familiar note. "I try to prepare meals that will furnish all the protective elements—but I simply can't get my husband to drink his pint of milk a day. And I know that he needs the milk for calcium and other essentials."

Coaxing a man to drink his milk seems to be a common problem. The "Market Basket" offers this suggestion: Use more milk in cooking. Soups made with milk, sauces, scalloped dishes, custards and puddings are all good ways of including milk in the daily diet. Cheese is also mentioned as an excellent source of calcium—and most men like cheese.

If you are on a diet and can't reduce, what to do? Send stamped return envelope to The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., for Ida Jean Kain's "Reducer's Ten Commandments" and check up on the error of your ways! Some little habit may be holding you back from a considerable weight loss!

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

$1,000 Worth of Tooth.

In removing one of my teeth the dentist broke off both roots. Is it harmful to me if these roots are left in the jaw? (S. R. M.)

Answer—If I were in your place I'd remain under the dentist's observation and follow his advice about dealing with the roots. Send 25 cents coin and s.a.e. for booklet "Save Your Teeth." Due to peculiarity in formation of tooth or socket, such a complication as you had may occur in certain instances, no matter how painstaking, skilled and experienced the dental surgeon.

Flaxseeds.

I am under the impression that you advised whole flaxseeds in preference to mineral oil preparations for intestinal stasis or constipation. Please give your advice. (M. H. W.)

Answer—I advise against internal use of mineral oil in any form. Instructions for use of flaxseeds are given in booklet "Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene"—for copy send 10 cents coin and stamped envelope bearing your address.

THESE WOMEN -- By d'Alessio

MY DAY: Enjoying Lovely Weather

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

DALLAS, Texas, Tuesday.—We woke yesterday to the most lovely balmy weather. It was like a warm October day in New York state. A drive around the city of Abilene and out to Hardin-Simmons University gave us an opportunity to enjoy the sunshine.

When we were here last year, Dr. Sandefur, who was president of the university, was in very delicate health, but I remember with pleasure my short visit with him. Since then, he has died and we took some flowers yesterday to his grave on the campus. I particularly like the inscription, which pointed to the university buildings all about as his real monument.

We stopped for a minute to see his wife, a very charming elderly woman with a lovely face, who is readjusting her life in a new house and new duties and interests. This must be hard to do, and yet she gave one no sense of finding it a burden.

In think, perhaps, one of the things most to be desired in old age is the power to acquire new interests and to meet whatever situation comes with a gallantry which makes people feel that you are conferring a privilege on them when you share a little of your life with them.

Back at the hotel we spent the afternoon reading and writing. I am proud to say that I actually have no unanswered personal letters in my brief case, even the longhand ones were written yesterday.

At 8:30 we went to the auditorium and the new president of the university, Dr. White, introduced me. The most colorful part of the evening was the cowboy band. They played and sang "The Eyes of Texas." At the end of the program one of the boys sang "I Am an American," and finally the whole audience joined in singing "God Bless America."

I think this cowboy band is coming to Washington for the inauguration and I shall watch for them with interest in the parade. They will give me an added reason to pray for good weather, for rain would be as destructive to their very effective costumes as it was to my own hat, coat and dress in 1936. That drive down Pennsylvania avenue in an open car in the pouring rain is still fresh enough in my mind to make me hope we shall not have to repeat that part of the inaugural ceremony.

After the lecture last night, Mr. Frank Roberts came to my door just to pay his respects, because he had served under Uncle Ted and still liked the Roosevelts. I think it is remarkable how the young men who served under Uncle Ted have never forgotten him, nor lost the memory of the spell of his personality.

Abilene is a nice, friendly place. Even though we did not leave until this morning, young Mr. Sandefur came for us and took us to the station and saw us safely on our way.

WILSON'S Week-End SUGGESTIONS

Wise buying can make your meat money go further. Especially is this true of week-end shopping when your meat purchase must take care of a number of meals. So I give you a "meaty" suggestion on how to get 25% more servings from your ham.

WHY A 12 LB. TENDER MADE HAM EQUALS A 16 LB. ORDINARY HAM
Not made tender by the Wilson secret process

The longer meat stays in the oven, the more it shrinks. An ordinary 16 lb. ham, requiring up to 30 minutes per pound for cooking, often shrinks up to 25%. You pay for 16 lbs. You serve about 12 lbs.

Due to the Wilson Secret Process, Wilson's Tender Made Ham (the ham you cut with a fork) requires but 5 minutes heating per pound. Thus there is practically no waste of oven shrinkage. You can, with a 12 lb. Tender Made Ham, serve practically as many people as with a 16 lb. ordinary ham. This is why Wilson's Tender Made Ham costs no more to serve than ordinary ham.

Small Family? Small Refrigerator? TRY THESE "FAMILY-FITTED" HAMS

For smaller families there are the half and family size tins of Tender Made Boneless Ham (no waste). The same wonderful flavor and tenderness as the regular Tender Made Ham. Use it the same way.

Entertain AT SUNDAY BREAKFAST

MENU
Halves of grapefruit flavored with sherry
Broiled slices of Wilson's Tender Made Ham
Waffles Buttered Pineapple Syrup Coffee

BUTTERED PINEAPPLE SYRUP
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 cups pineapple juice
3/4 lb. Clear Brook Butter
Mix sugar, cornstarch and pineapple juice. Cook until clear. Add butter.

WHERE THE TRADE WINDS BLOW—There's plenty going on at the baseball convention as you may have seen or heard. These pictures are typical of the gathering, usually in the hotel lobbies. In the picture on the

The league baseball convention is of such magnitude that around Atlanta are coming in for a share of the overflow of press notices.
Wyatt, of Cedartown, one of the mainstays of the Brooklyn Dodgers, drove in yesterday and took a bunch of ducks and geese down to a wild turkey dinner last night at S. W. Duke's place, just out of Cedartown.
MacPhail, president and manager of the Dodgers, Durocher, manager, were attending conferences to the trip, but the others were to bring back a piece of the turkey. In the morning, Coach Chuck Dressen, Ben Tincup, and Scouts McGrew, Andy High, Red Killefer, and Bill Killefer, were to be present. Activities began at 4 o'clock and lasted until late in the night. "Who is the toughest hitter in the National League, Mr. Derringer?" a reporter asked the huge Cincinnati pitcher as the baseball delegates rubbed elbows around a hotel lobby here yesterday.
Oom Paul started to pull that on-the-fence line about "they're all tough," and then he brought himself up short, if a six-foot-six man can accomplish such a feat, and said: "Johnny Mize is the toughest hitter in the league and in the game. I don't think there is any doubt about it."
Derringer, hero of the 1940 World Series, had a very good reason for his high rating of the Demore (Ga.) giant. "He's great because he possesses the sharpest eye and is the hardest to fool. Ten times out of 11, when Mize swings that big bat, you can bet he's going after a good ball. Naturally, we pitchers hate to see him come up there."
Derringer thinks Ernie Lombardi, lumbering Redleg catcher, can come nearer to hitting any sort of pitch than any other player in the business. "It doesn't matter whether it comes in straight or crooked, high or low, inside or outside. If the big Snoodle can reach it he'll give her a ride."
Derringer has been visiting Heinie Manush at Douglas, Ga. He lives at Sarasota, Fla. Paul invested the money he got from the recent World Series in annuities for his five-month-old daughter, Leda Louise.
Bill Terry strolled into the lobby and spied Larry MacPhail, Brooklyn chief who had just announced the trading of Gus Mancuso and a pitcher named John Pintar for Mickey Owen, Cardinal backstopper, talking with Bob Quinn, owner of the Boston Bees.
MacPhail told Terry the news and Memphis Bill exclaimed: "You've made a good deal. Threw in some cash, too, didn't you?" The answer was "yes."

Mickey Owen Traded To Dodgers by Cards

St. Louis Gets Mancuso, Pitcher and Cash; Doc Prothro Signs One-Year Contract With Phillies.

By JUDSON BAILEY.
Associated Press Sports Writer.
The trading tempo of baseball's big winter meetings reached top speed Wednesday with completion of two major deals in the National League and the rumored near-closing of several others.
The Brooklyn Dodgers, continuing their fabulous spending in an effort to build up a pennant winner, acquired the coveted catcher, Mickey Owen, from the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Catcher Gus Mancuso, Rookie Pitcher John Pintar and a "large amount" of money, variously estimated at $65,000 or $75,000.
Before this deal was two hours old the World Champion Cincinnati Reds, who had come to town telling everybody they weren't interested in the trade mart, gave up Billy Myers, their 30-year-old shortstop, to the Chicago Cubs for Outfielder Jim Gleeson, Shortstop Bobby Mattick, and an additional player to be named later. No cash was involved.
The net effect of these swaps was to confuse everybody at the 39th annual convention of the minor leagues and make the National League outlook for 1941 a charming uncertainty.
At the first glance it looked like the Dodgers benefited most in their transaction with David Harman, Branch Rickey and Sam Breadon, getting the money they like so well, while the Reds and Cubs broke about even.

The Chicago White Sox and the Boston Red Sox made a baseball deal last night—and then put it on the shelf—that would send Outfielder Doc Cramer to Chicago for Outfielder Mike Kreevich in a straight swap.
Manager Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox and Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox held a long huddle and when they finished said they had agreed on the trade, except that Dykes said that the deal would have to be approved by Vice President Harry Grabiner before it was completed.
Just what happened then was not immediately known, but the two clubs concerned decided to withhold final approval of the trade until a later time, possibly today or maybe next week at the major league meeting in Chicago.

The minor league baseball convention is of such magnitude that even towns around Atlanta are coming in for a share of the overflow publicity and press notices.

Whitlow Wyatt, of Cedartown, one of the mainstays of the Brooklyn Dodgers hurling staff, drove in yesterday and took a bunch of Dodger coaches and scouts down to a wild turkey dinner last night at S. W. Duke's cabin, just out of Cedartown.

Larry MacPhail, president and general manager of the Dodgers, and Leo Durocher, manager, were too busy attending conferences to make the trip, but the others promised to bring back a piece of turkey—maybe a bone. In the party were Coaches Chuck Dressen and Ben Tincup, and Scouts Ted McGrew, Andy High, Red Coriden and Bill Killefer.

Festivities began at 4 o'clock and lasted until late in the night. The other near-by town in the news is Marietta. At 10 o'clock this morning at the city square, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, may be presented a plot of land near Kennesaw mountain, for which he was named. Mayors of both Atlanta and Marietta will be among the notables present, Major Trammell Scott, president of the Southern Association, who is

"I'd still like to buy one of those fellows from you I was talking about," Terry said, turning to Bob Quinn.

"Well, I dunno," teased the veteran Boston mogul, "appears to me this fellow MacPhail has got more cash than you have."

"You mean he once had more," retorted the leader of the Giants. "He didn't buy Higbe from the Phillies with soft drink tops. And I'll wager he threw in plenty of potatoes for that Owen."

"Well, you can't expect me to trade right here in front of these sportswriters," complained Mr. Quinn.

"Scat," snapped Terry, turning to the scribes. "You've got me in enough trouble down here already." Bill apparently was referring to the Gabby Hartnett story, released by Horace Stoneham, of the Giants, before Terry made suitable financial arrangements with the ousted pilot of the Chicago Cubs.

Boys' High To Bid for Southern Title Against Miami Tonight

Purple Eleven Seeks To Spill Unbeaten Foe

Doyal Promises Entire Squad Steak Dinner If It Wins.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 4.—Shorty Doyal has appealed to the inner man—or rather inner boy—in order to spur his Boys' High eleven to greater efforts in their game Thursday night against Miami High for the prep championship of the south.

Just before departing the train from Jacksonville Tuesday night, he gathered his stomach-empty athletic brood around him and started them into mouth-watering anticipation with the generous declaration, "Boys, I offered you milkshakes if you beat Tech High. Well, just to show you how badly I want to win this one, I'll buy steak dinners for all of you and your dates—and you don't have to bring the steaks either—if you will 'take' Miami for me."

Between drools the famished lads made a solemn vow to win this one for dear ole Boys' High. Shorty Doyal and a square meal.

LORD SALISBURY—World's Loudest Dresser.

'World's Loudest-Dressed Man' Disrupts Baseball Convention

Lord Salisbury Serious Rival of Dr. Hausman; Colorful Attire Donned After He Shot a Man.

By THAD HOLT.
There's a move afoot to bar Lord Salisbury from the gathering of the delegates to the baseball convention. "I had one deal almost completed yesterday," moaned one of the traders in baseball ivory. "The deal would have made my ball club a contender. I had this other party hanging on the ropes. And what happens? This Lord Salisbury or other strolls in, dressed like a Christmas tree. The eyeballs of the man with whom I'm closing go out on stems. He forgets all about the deal, excuses himself, follows the one-man circus down through the milling throng."

Lord Salisbury self-styles himself the "loudest-dressed man in the world." Lord Salisbury's claims may soon be disputed. It is reported Atlanta's Dr. Hausman, the rainbow-dressed medicine man, has his crew of tailors plotting a sensational new suit which he will spring on the convention today. But anyway, until the good doctor steps out, Lord Salisbury, who hails from a town by the same name in North Carolina, will carry on.

Lord Salisbury usually dresses in six colors, having modified his attire in recent years. When the above picture was made, this dignified 67-year-old showman was attired in an entirely different dress from that in which he met reporters 50 minutes later. At the interview his sober costume included a red hat and long-tail blue coat, gray and blue shoes, yellow tie, big black cigar. Dangling from his vest was an over-antiquated baseball and a tiny pot, or vase, which contained a wrinkled dollar bill.

Around one ankle was clamped a man's wrist watch, featuring a red band. Enormous chains adorned his vest. Thirty minutes afford him time to dress.

Why does he do it? "Mine was an unhappy marriage," he explained. "My wife was a beautiful woman but she was unfaithful. I had to shoot the other man. Afterwards, I hit upon the idea of bright and colorful dress as a medium of driving away sorrow."

"But what about the man in the case, Lord Salisbury? Did you kill him?"
Fondling his monocle briefly, a smile glittered in his gray eyes as he shot back—"Well, he isn't living."

Landis May Receive Plot At Kennesaw

handling the arrangements, announced yesterday. Landis must agree to make his home there in order to receive title to the land.

Autograph hounds were having a field day in the Ansley lobby Wednesday afternoon. A group of high school girls and boys with notebooks and pencils in hand were making the rounds. With so many big names present they did not have to stop and pick out anybody. They took them as they came and were satisfied.

Pretty girls passing out flowers boosting San Francisco for the next convention were competing with autograph seekers. As expected, no one was running away to keep from having a pretty face pin a flower on his lapel.

Already fluttering from the mezzanine railing are banners announcing that San Francisco, San Antonio, Toledo and Jacksonville are seeking the 1941 convention.

Wonder what Czar Landis was implying when, on being introduced to a federal district judge out at the brilliant Piedmont Driving Club affair Tuesday night, he said to the judge: "You have the best job in the world. You don't have to stand for re-election and can tell anybody just exactly what you wish."

Landis is scheduled to make one of his rare addresses before the convention tonight. The minors have been trying to gain jurisdiction (along with the majors) over Landis. They tried to curb his powers at their last convention, but the major league overruled them.

Coach Artis P. Graves, of Morris Brown College, is working his men hard this week in preparation for the third annual Peach Blossom game at Ponce de Leon Park Saturday afternoon. His team and Kentucky State will meet.

Coaches Graves and Lockhart, who head the board of strategy at Morris Brown, are carefully grooming their squad to meet the hardest running attack they have faced all year. The squad is expected to be at full strength against the "Thorobreds," one of the four top-ranking colored teams in the nation.

Provisions are being made to accommodate more than 1,000 white fans who annually attend the Peach Blossom classic. Last year about 1,200 white fans witnessed the game.

Last year Morris Brown beat Virginia State, 13-7.

Bill for Family Driving Permit Is Being Drawn

Source Says Fees May Be Changed Under New Law.

An authoritative quarter, according to the Associated Press, revealed yesterday that work is under way on a bill, to be introduced in the next legislative session, carrying out Governor-elect Eugene Talmadge's promise of a family driver's license supplanting the present $1 fee for each private driver and $2 for professional chauffeurs, and reducing to 25 cents the charge upon all family defendants under 21 years of age. The new bill would require a 50-cent fee for each examination.

A possible variation, it was said, would make the charge 50 cents for wives and dependents under 21. Inclusion of wives in the 25-cent grouping was given as another possibility.

Revenue of the state department of public safety, including the state patrol, crime prevention and detection and safety education groups, is derived solely from the license fees.

It was estimated that $700,000 of the department's yearly $700,000 appropriation would be lost by the reduction. About half of this would be made up by the examination charge, it was believed, on the basis of the established 10 per cent "turnover" of the state's 653,000 licenses.

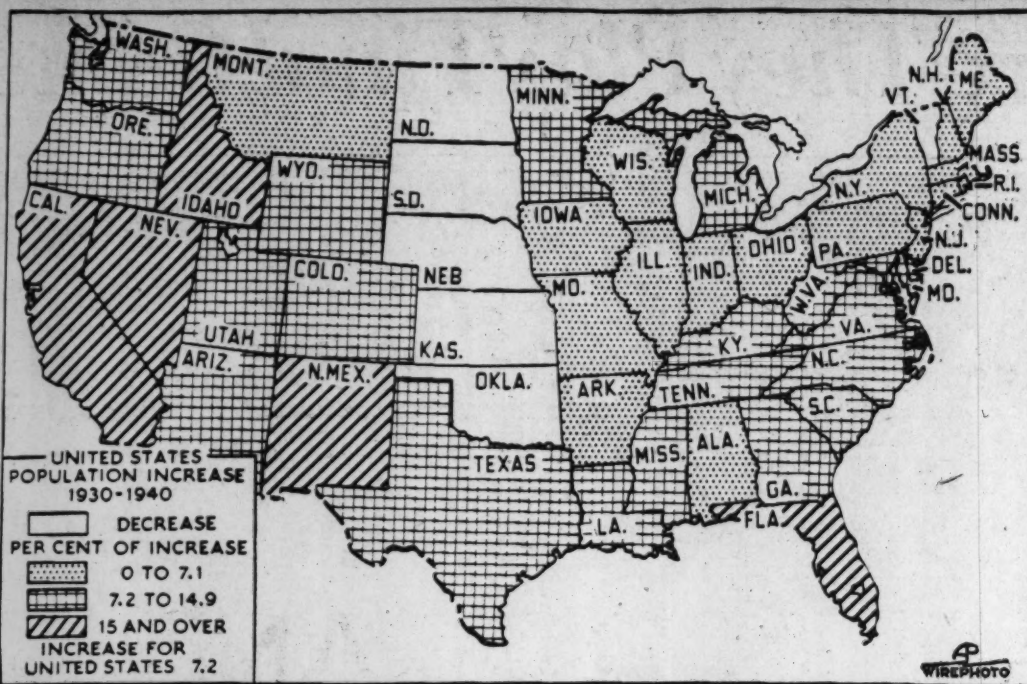

Control of drivers and weeding out of incompetents would be maintained, it was asserted, by continuing the power to suspend or revoke licenses.

Pilgrim Is Re-elected To Post in Gainesville
Special to THE CONSTITUTION. GAINESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 4.—George Ezra Pilgrim, civic leader and businessman, was re-elected yesterday as city commissioner from the first ward in the annual election. He defeated Harold J. Pierce by a vote of 527 to 106. The balloting was the heaviest in five years.

Pilgrim, who has been mayor the past year and a half, is a past president of the local Rotary Club and past commander of the Ed H. Almond post of Spanish War Veterans. He will serve the next three years, along with George H. Ashford and Frank W. Webb.

at the CITY HALL

Warning against sneak thieves made its annual appearance on bulletin boards at the city hall yesterday. L. Glenn Dewberry, building superintendent, urged employees to be extremely careful to protect their valuables against loss by petty thieves. He recited that the advent of winter is the season for sneak thieves at the city hall.

Miss Stella Murray, teacher in the Atlanta public school system since September 1, 1905, yesterday filed application for a pension effective January 1, 1941. She began teaching in the Girls' High school, and since has taught at Grant Park and Fair Street schools, but more recently has been a member of the faculty at Peoples Street school.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam believes his colleagues need more education, and is willing for the taxpayer to bear the expense. Council's finance committee, therefore, will consider a resolution by Gilliam to provide copies of Robert's Rules of Order for all 18 members of council. "I think we need some parliamentary instruction," Gilliam said, after an hour wrangle at council's last session over a minor resolution.

Dr. James F. Hackney, assistant city health officer, yesterday was painfully but not seriously injured at Glenwood and Park avenues when his car and a coal truck collided. His face was cut and he was bruised severely. He was sent home by Dr. John P. Kennedy, chief of the department.

Lloyd A. Walker, city purchasing agent, yesterday advertised for bids for raising the walls in front of the municipal auditorium, destroyed by the Armistice night fire. City officials insist the walls be torn down to permit opening of Courtland street from Gilmer to Edgewood avenue.

150 Ships Pledged, British Paper Says

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Daily Mail, in a page one dispatch under a Washington date line, declared tonight:

"The United States government are placing 150 American merchant ships at Britain's disposal immediately."

The dispatch, attributed to unnamed sources, "of the highest repute," said "this timely aid, decided on in government conferences in the past 48 hours, is part of a plan to mobilize all available American merchant shipping to meet what officials here (in Washington) believe is Britain's first and most imperative need."

It added, "more destroyers are likely to follow, as well as an increased flow of aircraft," and that it was understood that President Roosevelt "laid down a broad plan for this increased extensive aid to Britain before sailing on his Caribbean cruise."

Cold Loosens Grip on North; South Shivers

Frost as Far as Tampa; California Has a Heat Wave.

Warmer weather returned to New York state last night in the wake of three days of record-setting cold, but indications generally were for falling temperatures again Thursday.

The cold wave moved seaward as the arctic blasts sent thermometers to subzero figures in many New England points. An all-time record for December 4 of five below was recorded at Chicago. Cleveland's six above was the coldest on that date since 1871. In the south temperatures tumbled to the lowest of the year in a number of cities.

Some of the day's minimums were 10 at Richmond, 17 at Chattanooga, 18 at Nashville, 23 at Macon, Ga., 26 at Atlanta, 30 at Tallahassee, Fla., 33 at Savannah, Ga., 26 at Memphis and 22 at Spartanburg, S. C. Light frost was reported as far south as Tampa, Fla. Temperatures in Texas and Louisiana were in the 40s. The forecast called for a change to warmer.

California had a midwinter heat wave Tuesday, with the mercury registering 86 at Los Angeles. Phoenix, Ariz.'s reading of 81 Tuesday was the highest for the date there in 46 years. Tuesday's high at Tarzana, Cal., was 94.

Landis To Visit Kennesaw Site Near Marietta

Offer of Land Still Holds Good, Baseball Czar Is Told.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Dec. 4.—Kennesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, may get a wish tomorrow when he comes here to see the mountain for which he was named.

He may become owner of a tract of land near Kennesaw mountain.

Two years ago, when the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues met in New Orleans, Landis told President Trammell Scott, of the Southern Association:

"Some day I would like to retire to a little farm where I can look out and see Kennesaw mountain."

Scott spoke to Mayor L. M. Blair, of Marietta, not far from the mountain, where bloody fighting took place in the War Between the States. Blair, in turn, spoke to his city council, and that body arranged to present to Landis a small tract near Kennesaw mountain. They obtained options on several parcels of land, and offered a choice of them to Landis.

If he would come here and make his home on it.

City Councilman Frank B. Welions, one of the moving spirits behind the offer, announced today that the baseball czar will come to Marietta tomorrow, be greeted on the outskirts of the city, and will be brought to City Park for welcoming ceremonies.

Accompanying Landis will be Mr. Scott, Atlanta's Mayor Hartsfield, Earl Mann, of the Atlanta Crackers; Joe Engel, of the Chattanooga Lookouts, and Bert Niehoff, former Cracker manager. Commissioner Landis was named for the mountain by his father, a Union soldier, who lost his leg in hostilities near by during the War Between the States. The variation in spelling was due to errors in dispatches reaching the north after the battle.

U. S. Declared Doing All Right In Americas

Ought To Meet Nazi Price Competition, However, Author Says.

A man who knows—and he knows it so well he's written a book about it—believes Uncle Sam is sitting very well with all of the Latin-American brethren right now and probably will continue so, unless—

Unless there is a definite trend toward a Hitlerian victory overseas.

At which point Uncle Sam will do well to have his relations down there in good shape. Because the Latin Americans are used to dictators and have a way of trying to get on with them, no matter what may be true inner convictions.

The man, Duncan Aikman, author and widely traveled journalist, has recently published "All American Front," now in its third printing, in which he goes exhaustively into this and other matters. He came into Atlanta yesterday after covering such divers assignment as the American Federation of Labor convention in New Orleans and the training of New York's own division of National Guard, the Twenty-seventh, at Fort McClellan, Ala. Presently he will be back in New York, where he is a staff member of the new afternoon newspaper, PM.

Economic Barrage.
"In our efforts to save the Latin-American market from the Nazis," Aikman said, "we could do worse than to lose sight of the immediate profit-and-loss factor. We ought to meet Nazi price competition, even at a loss, and, if necessary, subsidize our own manufacturers. There isn't any profit in a high-explosive shell discharged in a war, but it is necessary. This would be a sort of economic barrage of such shells."

The Roosevelt administration's "good neighbor" policy has improved our situation measurably, he has found, but the old conception of Uncle Sam as the "Colossus of the North" dies hard. The Latin Americans much prefer us to Hitler, with his cavalier attitude toward small countries, and want to believe that our new attitude is permanent. They were fearful of a Willie victory, recalling the normal Republican party attitude of imperialism, and breathed easier when Friend Roosevelt was elected.

Franco Propaganda.
One of this nation's worst difficulties down there is the propaganda of Spain's Franco, he believes. Franco serves as agent for the Axis, and his siren voice has for our southern neighbors a persuasive quality which this country hears in Great Britain's words in times of emergency.

IMPROVED—Our relations with Latin America are in better shape than formerly, Duncan Aikman, author and expert on the subject, declared yesterday on his arrival here.

Tall, spare, 51 years old, Aikman has worked on newspapers from London to San Francisco. He is a Yale man, and a native of Indiana. While here he ran across a former fellow townsman, James A. Colescott, late of Terra Haute, Ind., and now head of the Ku Klux Klan. They do not see eye to eye, however.

Of the labor convention, he said: "It was so damned stupid I left after the first week."

In his journeys Aikman has crossed the trail of the late Fuzzy Woodruff, Atlanta newspaperman, and he was a Thanksgiving dinner guest in New Orleans of Roark Bradford, author who formerly served on a newspaper here.

Aikman is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Virgil E. Perryman, of 1079 North avenue.

Regents' Board Reveals 265 on Scholarships

Georgia High School
First Honor Graduates
Attend Colleges.

The State Board of Regents announced yesterday that 265 first honor high school graduates are in attendance at various units of the University System on free scholarships, with 44 each at the University of Georgia and the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville. Twelve are at Georgia Tech.

Other units of the system reported the following number of scholarships:

Georgia Normal and Agricultural College, Albany (Negro), 6; Georgia Southwestern College, Americus, 15; University System Center, Atlanta, 7; West Georgia College, Carrollton, 15; Middle Georgia College, Cochran, 9; North Georgia College, Dahlonega, 13; South Georgia College, Douglas, 6; Fort Valley State College, Fort Valley (Negro), 21; Georgia State College, Savannah (Negro), 6;

Georgia Teachers' College, Statesboro, 30; Abraham Baldwin Agricultural College, Tifton, 22; Georgia State Woman's College, Valdosta, 13.

This year's large number is an increase of 41 over last year when 224 students received the regents' scholarship offered to the first honor graduate of each accredited high school in Georgia.

CIO Textile Leader Opens Drive in South

Higher Wages One Objective of R. R. Lawrence's Program.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A general movement in southern textile labor was announced today by R. R. Lawrence, southern director of the CIO Textile Workers' Union of America, as he took off on a trip into South Carolina and Georgia in the interest of the program.

This he described as (1) a drive for general wage increases, each according to individual conditions, but averaging about 15 per cent; (2) emphasis on increasing the TWUA membership; and (3) support for the TWUA's petition to the federal wage-hour administration for raising the cotton textile wage minimum from 32.5 cents an hour to 40 cents.

UNION OFFICE HERE UNAWARE OF TRIP

The Textile Workers' Union of America's office in Atlanta said yesterday they had not been advised of R. R. Lawrence's projected trip into Georgia and that so far as they knew no date had been set.

A Story of the American White-Collar Girl

Panel 1: A man in a suit and hat stands in a doorway, looking out at a woman in a dress who is walking away. A speech bubble from the man says "HERE I AM CAREFUL, DARLING". A speech bubble from the woman says "---ABOUT MY LOVELY HOME --- MY FINE HUSBAND".

Panel 2: A close-up of the woman's face, looking surprised or shocked.

Panel 3: The man is now inside the house, standing next to a small child who is calling out "MOMMY!". The man is looking down at the child.

Panel 4: A close-up of the woman's face, looking down with a sad or thoughtful expression. A speech bubble from her says "--- AND MY LITTLE BLIND BOY ---".

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES) Before 2:30 p. m. your mind will be stable and dependable, which will enable you to widen your sphere of activity, therefore this will be an auspicious period for general business activity, for correspondence and activity. The evening hours are favorable for new plans, and making sudden decisions.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS) During the morning hours and until 12:15 noon, those with whom you associate may be unusually understanding and helpful and avenues of endeavor that cater to the artistic or literary side of life should meet with surprising success. After 12:15 noon favors sticking to routine matters.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI) Plan your entire day and do not allow yourself to slip into laxness. Vagueness and confusion or dealings with people who are undecided will not bring you profit. After 6:30 p. m. your emotions and feelings should be thoroughly controlled.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER) Previous to 3:45 p. m. guard your health, as the influence operating now often brings a feeling of lassitude. Use care in dealings with liquids. The evening hours suggest caution in travel and avoid sudden changes.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO) Before 4:30 p. m. favors meetings, conferences, plans and projects, both of a social and business nature. The period favors seeking the aid of important friends. After 4:30 p. m. be especially careful concerning health.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO) Your energies and ambitions will be strong today and until 8:30 a. m. you will desire

Desperate Action

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

What today means to you if you were born between:

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA) — Slowness, nervousness and dissatisfaction occur before 3:30 p. m. New beginnings may encounter stubborn resistance. The period favors taking on only minor duties before this time. After 3:30 p. m. favors new ideas in music and art.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO) — Forget dreams and stick to realities today, for your energies are likely to flow toward too much exhilaration and imagination. The day does not especially favor making sudden changes or moves.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS) — An auspicious day to improve conditions around you and to undertake work of a life, but suggests caution in creative ideas, around liquids, water and chemicals. The remainder of the day is auspicious for making progress in those things that will advance your standing, or dealing with people who are conservative and responsible and for those things that are matured slowly.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN) — Throughout the entire day and evening you are likely to have an overstrained, nervous and irritable feeling. The period does not take chances that can be avoided. Use care in travel and avoid discussions. Between 5:30 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. favors general business interests.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS) — Previous to 5:06 p. m. favors routine affairs in your life, but suggests caution in creative ideas, around liquids, water and chemicals. The remainder of the day is auspicious for making progress in those things that will advance your standing, or dealing with people who are conservative and responsible and for those things that are matured slowly.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES) — Before 5:35 a. m. and 4:45 p. m. do not take chances that can be avoided. Use care in travel and avoid discussions. Between 5:35 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. favors general business interests.

DON'TS OF MAKE-UP—Raiford Ragsdale, like the average girl, highlights her cheekbones, giving a "hot-iron burn" impression to Bernard J. McConnell, famed make-up expert. The lip rouge is too heavy, also.

APPLYING FOUNDATION—Preparing Raiford for correct make-up, McConnell applies a foundation to cover all blemishes and give a satin finish.

NECK, SHOULDERS, ARMS—McConnell applies the foundation to the neck and uses liquid powder on the shoulders, arms and neck to make them match the facial make-up.

LIPSTICK—Only a very little lipstick should ever be used, McConnell says, and that should follow the natural lines of the mouth, preserving God-given individuality.

ONE HOUR LATER—It was exactly 60 minutes after Raiford Ragsdale walked in looking as she did in the upper left-hand picture when the above picture was made. Here Raiford is in the glamorous naturalness of her own beauty. McConnell has devised a make-up that emphasizes her better features and de-emphasizes those not so good. He will make-up all 11 girls for their screen tests this weekend. The girl making the best test will be named "Miss Anniversary" for the "Gone With the Wind" celebration December 12.

Average Girl Called a Flop On Make-Up

Expert, at Talent Try-outs Here, Gives Tips to Atlantans.

By LEE ROGERS.

The average American girl has no individuality—she is just a copy-cat in her make-up.

This is the expert opinion of Bernard J. McConnell, who's been making up actresses and debutantes for important stage, screen and White House engagements since the touring days of the Drews, from whom the Barrymores sprung.

McConnell is in Atlanta to make-up the 11 Georgia glamor queens who will compete in screen tests, beginning tomorrow at the Georgian Terrace, for the title, "Miss Anniversary." The winner shares the spotlight with Vivien Leigh at the "Gone With the Wind" birthday party next Thursday night and will be given a free trip to Hollywood by M-G-M.

Blotch Their Rouge.

"Most girls have no individuality," McConnell says. "They all blotch their rouge on cheek bones giving a skeleton looking effect when viewed from the side and the appearance of their cheeks having been burned with a hot iron when viewed from the front."

"Girls today have a cosmetic skin which flakes off. They have forgotten to use soap and water to remove their make-up. Often a girl will tell me, 'Water is hard on my face and ruins my skin.' I always remind them that when they still had that soft baby skin, doctors prescribed they be bathed in warm water with soap. When you use soap, it should always be the same kind and should be a personal bar like the toothbrush is personal."

McConnell made up Raiford Ragsdale yesterday morning to illustrate his points. Miss Ragsdale is one of the girls who won screen tests. He began by blending powders until he got a shade which he thought natural to her.

Look Natural.

"The point is to always look natural. Don't ever make yourself up a certain way because another girl does."

McConnell applies powder on

Nerve-Racking HEADACHES

Relieved in a Hurry

When the quick-acting ingredients in the "BC" formula go after a headache, the throbbing pain is usually relieved in short order. Also relieves neuralgia.

muscular aches and functional periodic pains. Use as directed on package and always consult a physician when pains persist. 10c & 25c sizes.

KITCHEN BURNS

Use Lucky Tiger Ointment. Soothing almost immediately. Get ease and comfort from itchy, burning feet, insect bites and stings—itchy, painful rectal irritations. Antipain—when in proper contact as in bandage for cuts, scratches and minor wounds.

Methodists To Ask Fund of Million

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 4. (AP)—The Methodist church's council of bishops decided today to conduct a campaign among the nation's 8,000,000 Methodists for a $1,000,000 fund to meet appeals arising from the European wars and American defense preparations.

Special collections for the purpose will be taken up Sunday, March 2. The money is to be used for maintenance of chaplains in army camps, and the assistance of missions in warring countries.

McConnell will lecture on make-up as he applies the paint to the girls for the screen tests Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Stone Mountain Elects Councilmen

The Stone Mountain municipal election, which named three councilmen for two-year terms, yesterday resulted as follows:

A. G. Spain, 57 votes; W. J. Hewitt, 55 votes; J. D. McCurdy, 45 votes, and L. E. Jolly, 22 votes.

The top three men were elected.

Decatur also voted yesterday but there was no contest, Homer George, Vernon Frank and W. W. Freeborn being re-elected commissioners without opposition.

Brazilian Bomber Falls, Hits House, Kills Three

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4. (AP)—The two-man crew of a Brazilian bomber being flown from Inglewood, Cal., to Brazil, and a woman were burned to death today in the crash of the bomber at Santiago Lapena, a mile from the Tuxpan airport. The plane struck the woman's house.

Other planes in the six-plane squadron returned to the airport after the accident. The cause of the crash was undetermined. The plane struck the house three minutes after taking off and burst into flames. Another woman and two children were burned seriously.

Man Walks 12 Miles For Draft Board Report

LEESBURG, Ga., Dec. 4. (AP)—Jackson Benjamin Smith read in the newspaper that his county draft board was looking for him.

So he walked the 12 miles from his rural home to report his correct address.

A Three Days' Cough is Your Danger Signal

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permits rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)
